Enter Mr. Raskob
Real Air Service
A Gentle Police Dog
A Wicked Partner

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE Democrats are wise in choosing John J. Raskob for national chairman, fortunate in his acceptance. Mr. Raskob, chief of General Motors' finance department, understands organization, and, important in a national campaign, he understands money.

Mr. Raskob's selection will be misunderstood by some. They will ask whether big business, usually on the Republican side, is with the Democrats this time.

No such question is involved. Mr. Raskob, a Democrat, and an intimate personal friend of Governor Smith, the Democratic candidate, accepts the national chairmanship as Governor Smith's friend. That's all.

THANKS to the postoffice, this country is developing a genuine flying service.

At this moment American air service is established from the Isthmus of Panama to Montreal, as it has long been from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Postmaster General New has let contracts for carrying mail by air from New York City, via Albany, to Montreal and from Key West, Fla., to the Panama Canal Zone.

Our air service southbound is 1,640 miles long.

Later the southern route will be extended to Guatemala, Salvador and farther south.

Postmaster General New, President Coolidge and our air service developers are to be congratulated.

A POLICE dog, "very gentle with children," suddenly changed its mind and savagely bit two little girls skipping rope. The dog will be examined for rabies.

Every police dog is about 50 per cent as dangerous as a wolf. If owners, instead of being allowed by the law immunity from the first bite," were put in jail for six months as soon as a dog bit anybody, there would be few police dogs wandering around.

SENATOR Reed of Missouri Governor Smith will have the well-known "wicked partner."

The governor will be mild and agreeable, consent of "Alphonse and Gaston," in his political campaign. The wicked partner Reed will lash out and smash out, and do it thoroughly.

Perhaps Herbert Hoover will find himself with a few wicked partners before the campaign is over, some even more wicked than he would like them.

TROUT raise their fins to bless President Coolidge, whose doctor investigated sickness of the trout near the Coolidge lodge.

The little trout were too weak to eat, the big ones had swollen necks. Colonel Coupal, able physician, put three drops of iodine in the little fishes' tank, five drops in the big trout tank. Immediately the little fishes dashed at their food and big trout necks stopped swelling.

The trout had goitre, an indication of insufficient iodine.

One city in New York state put iodine in its drinking water supply, diminished its many cases of goitre by 90 per cent. This annoys those that don't like medicine, but it diminishes goitre.

IN a few days Herbert Hoover, who never ran for office before, will be talking with President Calvin Coolidge, who has run for office about 20 times—without being beaten.

Mr. Hoover ought to get excellent advice from Mr. Coolidge on "How to do it."

CHICAGO'S Federal Reserve Bank has raised the discount rate to discourage little fellows that gamble on margin. Call money went to seven per cent. The little fellows decided that the big men meant business and sold out, had an unpleasant day, what with a national campaign and so on.

But this is another day. You can never tell what will happen. To discourage a 1928 stock speculator seems like trying to keep a squirrel on the ground.

OPENING GUN FIRED BY HEAD OF DRY LEAGUE

McBride Launches Anti-Saloonists' Expected Battle Against Smith

PUBLIC STATEMENT

Nominee's Election Would Be Worse Than Prohibition Repeal, Is Assertion

Washington, July 12—The first gun in the Anti-Saloon league's expected battle against Governor Smith was sounded today by General Superintendent F. Scott McBride in a public statement predicting "a condition worse than repeal" would follow election of the Democratic nominee in November.

"The election of such a candidate as Al Smith," McBride said, "would materially aid the liquor criminals of the country by wantonly handicapping the enforcement of the law, by the appointment of complaisant judges and blind-tiger officials, thus bringing about a condition worse than repeal.

"Any argument of the Smith partisans that their candidate could not injure prohibition is as false as the usual Tammany camouflage, any statement to the effect that any dry leaders or active drys have been deceived by this Smith propaganda is absolutely false.

Can't Win, He Says

Any men or group of men that rely upon appeals to the baser passions or to the appetites or to the exploitation of the weaknesses of their fellowmen, cannot hope to win victory against opponents whose appeal is based upon loyalty to constitutional government, continuance of our unrivaled health achieved under prohibition."

The statement did not name any presidential candidate but Smith. It named no party.

McBride's statement came only a few hours after John J. Raskob, newly selected chairman of the Democratic national committee, had publicly endorsed Smith's attitude on prohibition.

While the Anti-Saloon league thus charted its course for the campaign, the organized anti-prohibition forces were revealed as equally ready for the battle.

RAINBOW DIVISION VETERANS ARRIVING

Tenth Annual Convention of World War Group To Be Held in Columbus

Columbus, July 12—Members of the famous Rainbow division of the American expeditionary forces in the late World War began arriving in the city today for the tenth annual convention which will open here Friday.

The ranks of the boys who pushed through Belleau Wood 10 years ago, have been considerably decreased since the last meeting, the roster shows, but it is anticipated by officers that several hundred will be in attendance.

Activities for the session include business meetings Friday, parade Saturday afternoon and a banquet in the evening. At Newark a tree will be dedicated to the memory of the Rainbow division Saturday afternoon following the parade.

Major General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the U. S. Army, will review the division's parade in Columbus and officiate at the tree dedication.

WOMAN LOSES LIFE WHEN LAUNCH BURNS

Watertown, N. Y., July 12 — Mrs. T. Smith of Kingston, Ont., is dead, and six other persons are suffering today from severe burns received when the launch Just Brown burned and sank in the St. Lawrence river near Murray Isle. Nine other passengers were burned slightly.

Mrs. Smith, an elderly woman, died from the shock of submersion when the passengers were forced to plunge into the river.

LINDBERGH RESTS AFTER FLIGHT ACROSS CONTINENT

San Francisco, July 12—Fatigued after his six journey across the continent, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today was resting at Mitchel field. He arrived at 2:25a this morning from Bow last night.

Marion Youth in Convention Spotlight

Because of their prominence at the convention the two boys were photographed and their pictures appeared in the Kansas City Times. The above is a reproduction of the picture printed on the

Choice of Raskob as Democratic Chief Gives Business Top Place in Campaign

Democrats Now in Fight as Friendly to Big Interests

New York, July 12—A brand new Democratic party, shorn of the last vestige of the old Bryan fringe, made its bow to the country today.

In the driver's seat is Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the 1928 nominee, and beside him sits as national chairman John J. Raskob, who has been not inaptly called "a second Judge Gary" as a spokesman for so-called big business.

It is a wholly new Democratic party at the top—friendly instead of hostile to big business, frankly and avowedly wet at the top, sympathetic with the plight of agriculture—and it gives promise of conducting a bold, well organized and amply-financed campaign for the presidency.

Governor Smith's audacious move in selecting Raskob to conduct his campaign was described by his friends today as his acceptance of the challenge thrown down by Dr. Hubert Work, the Republican national chairman, to make the tariff and prosperity one of the great issues of the campaign.

Important Connection

As head of the great General Motors corporation, which scores with Standard Oil and the steel corporation the distinction of being the biggest of the big business in America; as a close associate of the great Dupont interests; as director in a dozen great business organizations, nobody could be more interested than Raskob in a protective tariff and the full dinner pail, Gov. Smith's friends pointed out today. Let Raskob's nomination stand them, they said, on the Smith acceptance of the Republican challenge.

Some of the southern and western Democrats of the old school were still a bit groggy today from the surprise of seeing a great business captain of Raskob's type and affiliation in the party saddle. Some of these shaking their heads, too, but on the whole they appeared to be willing to give the new order of things a trial.

An interesting story was told today of how Governor Smith came to make the final choice of Raskob.

The scene was in the governor's suite on the fourteenth floor of the Biltmore hotel. A smoke filled room with a dozen men present. The hour was 3 a. m. They had been talking for hours, puffing the smoke [illegible]

Lindy Not Known, Is Unable to Get $4 Check Cashed

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., July 12—"Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh? Never heard of him."

Thus was the famous "Lindy" greeted in a restaurant here when the lone ace of the Atlantic attempted to cash a $4 check. Colonel Lindbergh was forced to dig in his pockets for the 20 cents his "coffee and" amounted to.

A short while later, seeking a room in a hotel, "Lindy" was turned away because of a "full house." The New York-to-Paris flier was forced to spend the night in a rooming house.

BIG CORPORATIONS ARE CONSOLIDATED

Merger of Palmolive and Colgate Companies Announced at Chicago

Chicago, July 12—Consolidation of the Palmolive-Peet Co. and Colgate & Co., two of the largest soap and perfumery concerns in the country, was announced here today by officials of the Palmolive Co.

Stockholders' meetings will be called soon to vote upon the plan and if they assent the merger will be made effective as of July 1. The new consolidation will be known as the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company. Details of the merger have not been announced pending the stockholders' meetings.

Hoover Sentiment Reported To Be Solidified for Fight on Business Interests

Washington, July 12—The Republican party, in its efforts to place Herbert Hoover in the White House, will make Republican prosperity, the tariff and the business record of Republican administrations the outstanding issues of the coming campaign, it was learned today at Hoover headquarters.

The farm relief and prohibition issues will be handled locally in states where each commands widespread popular attention while Hoover himself will announce his personal views on both subjects in his speech of acceptance at Stanford University, Cal., on Aug. 11. Neither issue, however, will be carried to the people as a party doctrine unless developments necessitate a change in the present campaign policy.

The action of Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee, in naming John J. Raskob, chairman of the finance committee of General Motors, as the new Democratic national chairman, only solidified sentiment in the Hoover camp for a campaign on business issues.

The Hoover leaders looked upon Raskob's election as a shrewd solicitation of business support for the Democratic nominee, which will require heroic Republican efforts to circumvent.

Greatest Asset

The greatest asset to the Republican party in such a campaign, it was believed at Republican headquarters, would be Hoover's personal record as a business man, engineer, administrator and executive. The Republican national's handling of business affairs in the department of commerce, the tremendous success in promoting foreign trade while in the cabinet and his

RESCUE ENDS LONG TORTURE IN ARCTIC SEA

Mariano and Zappi Taken from Ice Floe by Russian Ship Krassin

LOST SINCE MAY 25

Survivors in Serious Condition; Malmgren Dead Since Month Ago

Moscow, July 12—Survivors of the Malmgren party of the Nobile polar expedition, who had been lost amid the northern ice floes since May 25, have been rescued by the Russian ice breaker Krassin, the ship reported by radio today.

Prof. Finn Malmgren, leader of the group of three men, was dead from illness and exposure.

The men—Malmgren and two companions—had been located on a drifting ice pack off North East land Tuesday night by Russian aviator Chuchnovsky. After circling over the group the airman was compelled by fog to land on North East land.

Chuchnovsky had been flying at low altitude over the desolate ice fields of the Arctic sea all day Tuesday. Suddenly in the dim twilight of the Arctic he saw a huddled group on an ice pack that might have been either human beings or polar bears. Two of the figures evidently had been aroused by the roar of the motor. He dropped to lower altitude and was able to make out two men weakly waving flags to attract his attention.

Impossible To Land

It was impossible to land, however, and the gathering mist was becoming too thick for safety so the aviator had to sail off, after apprising the Krassin by radio of his thrilling discovery. Chuchnovsky had been able to make out the figure of one man prone upon the ice. He immediately suspected that this thir member of the group was dead and notified the Krassin of his belief.

When Captain Samoylovich received the news he gave orders for full steam ahead, but had to change his course, owing to the towering ice bergs which were drifting in the path of the ship. The powerful steel prowed steamer, constructed to plow its way through ice fields from six to eight feet deep, plunged through the floes smashing its way forward on its mission of mercy.

In Serious Condition

The two survivors of the party of three were in serious condition. They had been drifting for days upon the ice in intense cold with death staring them in the face. They lived on greatly reduced rations of concentrated food which they carried when they set out from the "Noble floe" on May 25, after the crash of the dirigible Italia, to seek land.

It was the irony of fate that Malmgren, whose hardihood and knowledge of Arctic conditions were expected to

COOL WEATHER WILL PRECEDE HOT WEEK-END

Generally Fair Weather Predicted for Marion Tonight and Friday

Preceding what is expected to be another sizzling week-end throughout Ohio, Marion today revelled in a moderate temperature which reached and remained at the 78 degree mark.

Generally fair weather is predicted for tonight and Friday here, although showers threaten nearly every other portion of the state.

While the temperature today was agreeably warm yesterday's temperature was not so favorable. The mercury climbed to 87, dropping to 63 in the night. A year ago yesterday the temperature also reached 87 and dropped to 62.

Third Hottest July

Only two other Julys in the history of Marion have been hotter than the week just past. About 15 years ago the mercury soared to 104 degrees here during the first week in July. The only other period in which the temperature was higher during July occurred 20 years ago today when the temperature reached 98 degrees.

Another heat death was reported in Cleveland today. Herbert Lebreaton, 50, a barber, dropped dead in the east end and police said his death was attributed to excessive heat.

Attendants at Brookside park, Cleveland, last night reported finding unclaimed clothes to fit a boy of about 10, whom they fear was drowned while attempting to escape from the heat in the park swimming pool.

Showers To Come

More hot weather as well as showers for the entire state are predicted by the Columbus weather bureau for Saturday and Sunday. Another low pressure area will cover the state and bring with it torrid, humid weather, observations indicate.

Normal temperatures were prevailing over the state today, following the general thunder storms yesterday. Before the storm broke many cities reported the highest temperatures of the year, especially in the northwestern portion.

The mercury hovered near the 90 degree line around Lima and Toledo and intermediate points, whereas Zanesville, which had Sunday had the highest temperature officially recorded, was last night cooler, registering 68 degrees. Dayton [illegible]

SLAYER FACES CHAIR ON FIRST DEGREE VERDICT

Decision Reached After Deliberation of Two Hours and 20 Minutes

ON SECOND COUNT

Defense Attorney Johnson To File Motion for New Trial

Following a deliberation of two hours and 20 minutes, the jury in the trial for the life of Everett Koon, alias Cecil Dean, alleged slayer of Henry Foos, returned a verdict of murder in the first degree, without the recommendation of mercy, late yesterday afternoon in common pleas court.

The verdict was returned on the second count of the indictment which charged Koon with murder while committing a robbery. The verdict carries a penalty of death in the electric chair.

That Homer U. Johnson, attorney for the accused slayer will file a motion for a new trial was made known today. The motion will likely be made Friday, according to the attorney.

Attorney Johnson's motion for a new trial will be based on errors in the court record and on his contention that Koon's entry into the Foos resi-

KOON'S SECOND MURDER, IS CLAIM

Athens, O., July 12—The robbery and murder of Henry Foos, 73-year-old farmer, for which Everett Koon, 20, of this city, was convicted on a first degree murder charge, is not the first slaying attributed to Koon, according to authorities here.

Court records show that 10 years ago, when Koon was only a 16-year-old boy, he beat John Robinett, an aged Civil War veteran, to death near Nelsonville with a piece of railroad iron. Koon served a term in the Mansfield reformatory for the slaying of Robinett.

Koon's father, Isaac Koon, of Nelsonville, was sentenced in October, 1907, to serve 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary for the slaying of Thomas Smith in Athens county, but was granted a conditional pardon by Governor James M. Cox, and was released on Oct. 28, 1913.

dence was not robbery, but house breaking, the attorney stated today. Whether the hearing on the motion before Judge Geo. B. Bevfield will be held this week is not known. It is probable, however, that the hearing will not be held before next week.

Hours No Emotion

The jury began its deliberations at 3:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At 5:40 o'clock the verdict was returned.

The prisoner showed no emotion as the jurymen filed into the box. He sat quietly with his head on his hand and his elbow resting on the counsel table as the verdict was read by Harley Koons, clerk of courts.

After the verdict was read Attorney Johnson called for a roll call of the jurymen. Each man rose to his feet as his name was called and announced that he concurred with the verdict.

Although a few persons felt the courtroom while the jury was de-

Now! meal time is a happy event

"IT is all so wonderful, I can hardly believe my eyes. When I think how badly you used to feel—didn't want anything to eat—perhaps sometimes a little grouchy and miserable, and just driving yourself by main force, I almost shudder. I know it worried you, too. You seemed to feel as though you were slipping. Then one day you brought home a bottle of S.S.S. and told me you were going to give it a trial. That was only a few weeks ago. Today you look like a new person. Your appetite is keen, your flesh is firm, and your whole being seems to radiate happiness and I am happy too, because you are well and strong again."

Loss of appetite only a symptom

It is a known fact that when one's system gets "run-down," they haven't the resistance to ward off diseases. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Rich, red, blood builds and sustains

Your physician will tell you that lowered vitality is the result of an insufficient supply of red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

When you get your blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again; sleep soundly; solid flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong; and your nerves become steady.

comforting. "Everything for the best, Emmy, if you'll let it be so. This may turn out a happy thing, who knows? There, now; don't mind so, baby. Some day you'll have another dress much nicer."

Along with the thought of her mother came a vision of "Kitten" becoming a dancing sprite of a figure with a flaming aureole of hair and long, yellow eyes. Chin flung high, lips parted, a knowing smile, she was a colorful, capricious thing and she had a strange knack of always getting her own way.

Many a storming hour brewed in the Day household about her elfin self.

She treated with a rare flippancy her father's rantings and those he ranted against.

"Guess ole Rossiter wouldn't be such a bum if he gave you his money, would he dad" she'd suggest with a giggle.

"I'll have no sauce from you, Miss," Steve would reply, suddenly filled with dignity.

Sometimes she would take walks with Emily in the evening. They would go out River Road, loitering past Highcliffe, the Rossiter home. A stately villa of gray stone set far back from the street toward the river bank and shielded from prying eyes by a tall English wall. Even the gates were screened by casual clumps of pine and cedar.

But, lingering so, the girls would catch glimpses of shaded lamps, light gleaming down a nickel-hooded motor, perhaps hear a strain of music. Very unreal, very fairy-like it seemed to them as they wondered what living in such magnificance would be like.

"Isn't it swell-elegant, Emmy? Mrs. Briggs says Avis has a whole suite of rooms for herself and a maid just to take care of her clothes. Mmm, maybe I wouldn't like that. Makes you see why father goes raving around."

Mrs. Samantha Briggs was the Rossiter housekeeper and a friend of Agnes, so the Days received at first hand all the gossip from Highcliffe.

Today was just the kind of day to dream about Kent and try to figure out Marty's increasing attentions to her.

Marty at 18 was a big athletic boy with ruddy hair and red-brown eyes, a handsome young fellow in a heavy, rather sullen way. As he went strolling along Main st with his truculent, lordly manner, cap on the side of the head, feminine eyes turned with interest—and turned away. Up to this time it had not been considered quite safe to know him, but now Anne Morrow evinced an interest in him.

Anne didn't mind Marty being impolite, Emily reflected. Indeed it seemed almost that she liked his spiteful manners, considering how she fluttered and looked self conscious when he said atrocious things. She called him "red-blooded."

It was blue blood that counted, wasn't it? That was to be somebody important and true—to be blue blooded. To have ancestors; a family whose members had done splendid things. This was what turned the blood blue. Not to be placed by a dinner pail, tin badge of caste; not to have your father running on about "them swells"....

Emily knew now what "socially" meant. Anne could meet the word without flinching. Not flinching much, anyway. Did this mean Anne was blue blooded?

But most things, she had learned, sought contact with their own kind. If Anne really were blue blooded why did she admire Marty, whose father, Tim, ran a "speakeasy," a "neat little joint" he called it, down at the river edge?

She went to Stella to ask about Anne. "Why does she seem to like Marty, Stell? A year ago she would not speak to him and now she sort of follows him around and he never says a decent word to her. Is it just 'cause he's different from the other boys? Sort of the way you like a circus?"

Not likely. No use telling you, sweet Emmy. Wait'll you grow up."

"Why, I'm most as old as you, Stell."

"Not by 10 or 20 years, kid. Marty's pretty nifty, you know. Guess Anne's caught by the ole S. A."

"Well, what is S. A.? I heard someone—Bess Tourney—say that—"

"Of all the innocents! Listen—" Stella lowered her voice, whispered eagerly; Emily listened in a tense unrest.

"No," she kept saying. "No—I don't believe that—"

"You wait, Miss Wise-lady," Stella laughed. "You just wait."

Well, she was waiting—wondering what would happen when Kent graduated. Lips all shaking, she hummed a snatch of the song that had come to mean Kent to her.

"How oft hereafter, I sing shall she look Through this same garden, and for me in vain!"

"Life is like that maybe," she told herself. "Two come together and then time separates them. I heard something once; Ships that pass in the night.' Exquisite that is. A ship would be lonely after it had passed another—gone on into the gray.

"Yet it would be glad for the moment of light and sound. Perhaps there'd be a twist of music, like a silver bridge, thrown from one to the other."

The music would linger after night had closed round the passing ship. Linger softly, tenderly as a caress . . .

She saw it all in color; violet dark, blue light of stars glinting down slim, white bodies of the ships. Aloneness, a shadow far-flung, high as heaven's high and very deep . . .

The image came to her again and again. It came often when she stood before the window of a little interior decorating shop where she liked to stop because of the glimpses of beauty she caught inside.

The shop belonged to Frances Haiden, a brilliant, unconventional woman, who managed her affairs very capably in her own way and let the rest of the world go by.

Emily started down the hall toward the shop on the Saturday of the picnic. She had seen a piece of tapestry in the window the day before, a noble thing, faded by age. She didn't know that once it had graced the boudoir of a queen. She only knew that it was beautiful and she wished to see the soft colors, melting into each other.

But once outside, green things beckoned and she turned toward Herald Hill. There she found Marty Nolan sitting alone on a boulder, looking out across the valley.

She would have turned and gone back but he saw her. Without a word he climbed down and fell into step beside her.

They turned up North Mountain, still without speaking, and followed the trail to the summit. Far below them the river was a blue ribbon, undulating gently; to the north Rockland lake was spread like a round mirror. And away in every direction were the yellows and greens and hits of brightness of early spring.

She touched his arm, drawing a startled breath. "Marty—oh—"

"Guess it's pretty nice, ain't it, Em? Say, let's sit down—"

They sat on a shelf of rock, the world at their feet. After a time she said, timidly, "I think it's wonderful the way you're doing, Marty. All so proud of you we are—"

"You, Em?"

"Oh, everybody."

"Huh! Show those babies something."

There was a clump of bright leaves on a hunter lodge across a chasm. She pointed them out to him, spoke of their color.

He pulled himself up slowly, walked to the edge of the wall. She called to him to come back, begged him to listen. But he swung across the breathless space, gathered the leaves, swung back again and handed them to her. She was sobbing as she put out her hands.

"You might have been killed!"

He said tensely, "I'd do more than that for you, Em. Much more than that."

CHAPTER TWO

It was on another Saturday, late in the spring, when Emily again was overtaken by the car which had brushed her off the road and brought about the tragedy of the blue dress.

She was walking down the long slope of hill one morning, the sun about her—a fairy figure moving in brightness—with her arms full of magnolia blossoms. The car purred by, slowed and stopped. The driver was Frances Haiden.

"Tell me," she began abruptly, "aren't you the girl I knocked into the ditch a while back?"

Emily found herself looking into sharp, light eyes and a square face almost grotesquely made up but remarkable for its intelligence. The woman went on:

"I see that you are. Why didn't you wait that day? I had no intention of dashing away, you know."

"Why, it was all right, Mrs. Haiden I wasn't hurt. Just my dress." The memory of that came stabbing into her mind and her smile went out in a wistful droop.

Mrs. Haiden moved long, horribly stained fingers on the driving wheel, opened the door suddenly and said, "Get in." She turned up the River road, expertly dodged a truck, and throttled down the engine, gliding smoothly under cathedral arches of giant trees.

"Now," she said, "tell me."

Emily told about the dress. How Agnes had saved for it. About the pattern they bought together and the day when finally she brought home the fabric.

"Mother sat by the window and sewed. Every day when I came home I would see her sitting there, waiting for me to come. You see it was about the first really stylish dress I ever had. We're awfully poor."

She confessed that she shouldn't have worn it the rainy day. Only she loved it so—gallant thing with brass buttons and scarlet belt. Even now, sometimes, she went to the corner up in the attic where it was laid away and dropped a tear on its tarnished splendor.

She stopped all at once, quite dumb and frightened. Never before had she talked so, told every little thing that came into her heart. She could say much to Agnes, tell about what happened, what people said and did. She could explain other things to Stella. But never these things, never her stirring secret feelings.

Why should she do it now? This woman, a stranger, sat beside her, silently, sharp eyes on the road ahead. She had made no movement, no gesture of sympathy.

Yet there was a something that came from her. A sense of kinship, somehow. Understanding. Even in her confusion Emily felt that. Frances Haiden understood.

Now she said, "Humph!" and brought the car to a stop. "Wait, will you? Got to make a call in here."

She vanished up a drive and Emily waited.

There was a tradition in Lyall that Mrs Haiden possessed great wealth, but to some this story seemed inconsistent with her predilection for hard work. It did not occur to anyone that the dive cats out in the back of her shop, the dusty volumes on period costuming, furniture and architecture which cluttered her show room, even the pigment grimed into her hands, all might be unlovely symbols of a lovely thing, an irresistible urge to express beauty.

By occupation Mrs Haiden was an interior decorator by nature she was a poet. And few of those who owned villas out River road along Lyall's cote d'or but knew it. For when there was work to be done, rooms to be made over it was she they called in. And she did everything herself.

She had established a home down toward Great View on the very bank of the river, an old-fashioned Dutch colonial house under hemlock and white pine. And she filled it up with artists and writers, scientists, playwrights—celebrities and near celebrities of all descriptions.

Certain conservatives in the town rather raised their brows at her. They considered her calm disregard of old, accepted orders of living an attitude not to be taken lightly. But upon these she turned her wise, impersonal glance and they let her go her way without malicious gossip.

Emily thought of all this as she waited remembered her own curiosity about the woman whose shop window so fascinated her.

Yet, as she saw the square somewhat ungraceful figure coming across the lawn, gray head nodding, eyes musing, she thought, "I spoke to her only today. Never before today, but now it seems I always have known her. She makes you feel sort of easy; no need to talk a lot. Just sit beside her and she understands so—"

Mrs Haiden nodded to her and turned the car. She drove to the shop and Emily followed her inside, thrilled to the finger-tips.

"You like colors, my dear? I'll show you—"

Back to the dye room they went where two or three great vats stood over gas-rings and the walls were like dozens of rainbows caught and thrown together in a crazy blaze of color. There were blues ranging from cool to ultramarine; a conflagration of reds and orange; lengths of silk like forest glades dappled with gold and green; others which suggested the riotous hues of old fashioned gardens.

Emily could only stare and keep saying, "Oh!" But Mrs Haiden seemed to consider this sufficient. She explained how she herself, mixed the dyes and she told a little about the science of color, its harmonies and its clashes of contrast.

Then she got out one of the dusty books and began to leaf it through. "I care say the brass buttons were striking," she began. "One could trim a yellow peony with brass buttons. Ever notice morning glories, how simple they are? Nothing sweeter, more feminine."

She opened the book at a colored plate and pushed it toward the girl keeping her hand over the lines at the bottom. "Who is she like, my dear?"

The slip of a creature in the picture had a wistful face and a curling flutter of hair, moon pale. All the essence of femininity was in her delicate charm.

"Why—"

"Like you." Mrs Haiden removed her hand, the lines said "Elaine of Astolat."

"Like you." Exquisite. Don't mar the softness with military dash. Here," she snatched up a length of crepe the color of deep water when the wind is free. "This is for you. Have your Agnes make it so." And she sketched rapidly a slender little bodice running down to a full skirt and blousing sleeves. The collar and cuffs would be cut-out embroidery. She fetched a strip of this.

"Take it, my dear. It will replace the one you lost."

"But—"

"Certainly you're to take it. Only come and let me see when it's finished. You'll do that?"

So friendship began between Emily and Frances Haiden. A curious friendship made frequent visits to the treasure shop—few words and long silences. It opened up a new and glowing vista to the girl.

CHAPTER THREE

Steve Day had been rumbling about the factory "shiek."

This was a youth who worked at the Rossiter shop and who apparently gave considerable thought to his personal appearance. It disgusted Day.

The family was seated at the supper table and he was holding forth on the general worthlessness of a young fellow who would shine his shoes and cornish his hair.

"Goin' around with a little comb in his pocket an' pokin' his nose at the lookin'-glass like a fool girl. I says to him. 'Better mind your step young fella me lad an' not be wastin' the company's time. I'm an old, experienced hand' I says to him 'And you don't see me wastin' no time doin' myself'."

"And what did he say to that?" asked Kitten, grinning.

"You mind your business, Miss. I give him a plenty to think about. I says 'You load them crates on that truck an' make it snappy an' he says that's your job, guy. I says, 'My job is it? You do like I say or I'll know why not an' he says 'You an' how many cops?' Then he walks off, the blame fool. Them crates is standin' there yet."

Agnes had heard stories like this before and they always frightened her. Steve's stubbornness, his weak egotism—and all of them dependent on the job he regarded with such unconcern. She flashed a despairing look at Emily and remarked, mildly, "I hope Mr Rossiter won't mind."

"I'll tell that one a thing or two! Guess if it comes to choice between me an' white-collar Willie I take nothin' from any of 'em. I won't. I'm a free born American citizen. I am, an' gimme the chance to say so is all I'm askin'."

He had the chance sooner than he expected. Almost while he was speaking a long, shining car drew up in front of the house and Agnes let Wentworth Rossiter in.

Wiping her hand on her apron, red with embarrassment, painfully awkward, she motioned him into the room which opened from the dining room and the supper table by a wide arch and he sat down, pleasantly enough, talking to Day to finish his supper.

Day grunted and tried to go on, but Emily saw consternation run over his face. She was filled with confusion all at once. The red checked table cloth, the bowl of potatoes in their jackets—why did Steve always eat with his knife? Stabbing at a chop scooping up things she never had noticed it before.

Kent's father. At Highcliffe things would be different. Light gleaming down white linen, soft-footed servants. This was all so cheap. . . .

Her father got up, loudly wiping his mouth with the back of his hand; Agnes followed into the living room. He grumbled, "Yes sir?" and Agnes flushed. One antagonistic, the other servile—why couldn't they be just themselves? Because this was Rossiter . . . Emily followed them in a passion of protest.

Rather like Kent he was, tall and fine looking, with a ready smile. Now he began in a friendly way, "Little trouble at the works today?"

"It's that dam' white-collar lad won't do nothin' he's told. Ain't no trouble with me. I says to him, 'Load them crates' an' he says—"

"But loading is your job, Steve. The crates should have gone this morning. There might have been a delay of two days."

Steve shuffled his feet and scowled at the floor; Agnes pressed her hands together to stop them shaking. Rossiter glanced through the window and nodded at Peter Brent starting away down the street. "He'll get them out tonight. That youngster isn't a bad young fellow, Steve. Taking care of his mother and sending his sister to school. Try to give him a hand, will you? It's the older men like you, ones who've been with us a long time we depend on. Let me count on you, won't you?"

"Like Kent," Emily thought. "Clever and kind oh, he's fine. He didn't have to do this, come here to ask father not to be so disagreeable. Some would have discharged him taken his living away because he acted so. He won't let himself act like the Rossiters, he doesn't want to hire them."

Now Kent's father turned to her, smiling, and mentioned his own daughter. "You're younger than Avis? But of course; I remember your dad coming in to say he had a little girl. You'll soon get through school? And what will you be then? A teacher maybe?"

It was the first Emily had thought of that. She looked up with a tingle of excitement. "A teacher? You—you think I might teach? I'd love it? Mother's sister is a teacher. Why, maybe do you suppose I might teach Latin?"

He twinkled at her enthusiasm, yet she saw he was quite serious. "Of course you could teach. I've heard that a good student you are. Certainly you could teach Latin. Indeed I've heard about your aunt. Blood will tell, my dear."

There it was again, she thought. Always something blood would help you do or stop you from doing. Why? Must one surely be an others had been, those who had gone before and left an assortment of likes and dislikes, ambitions, hopes, failures to run through the body and make or mar one's life?

Was blood a despot always to command, never to be gainsaid?

It ran blue in one man's veins, and he was Mister Rossiter and controlled other men. And in another's veins it wasn't blue at all; just a life stream which kept him going along, able to earn his way, never firing him with the urge to climb the heights. And that one was Steve Day, factory hand.

Emily felt a vague resentment; a sense of defeat. What use ambition if this must be so? Held by blood as by an unbreakable chain one would be always the prisoner of heritage.

When she had spoken of her aunt, Kent's father remarked "blood will tell." Here was something; perhaps a thin line of blue coursing her pulses. Aunt Mary had the will to move up and on; somewhere back in the long ago there must have been an ancestor with vision and courage. Had something of these been passed down to her?

A drop of blue blood . . . She bared her wrist and looked at it long and thoughtfully.

The Mystery at Styles

THE YEAR'S MOST BAFFLING SERIAL STORY

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

CHAPTER 40

"POIROT, you old villain," I said, "I've half a mind to strangle you! What do you mean by deceiving me as you have done?"

We were sitting in the library. Several hectic days lay behind us. In the room below, John and Mary were together once more, while Alfred Inglethorp and Miss Howard were in custody. Now at last, I had Poirot to myself, and could relieve my still burning curiosity.

Poirot did not answer me for a moment, but at last he said:

"I did not deceive you, mon ami. At most, I permitted you to deceive yourself."

"Yes, but why?"

"Well, it is difficult to explain. You see, my friend, you have a nature so honest, and a countenance so transparent, that—enfin, to conceal your feelings is impossible! If I had told you my ideas, the very first time you saw Mr. Alfred Inglethorp that astute gentleman would have—in your so expressive idiom—'smelt a rat'! And then, bon jour to our chances of catching him!"

"I think that I have more diplomacy than you give me credit for."

"My friend," besought Poirot, "I implore you, do not outrage yourself! Your help has been of the most invaluable. It is but the extremely beautiful nature that you have, which made me pause."

"Well," I grumbled, a little mollified, "I still think you might have given me a hint."

"But, I did, my friend. Several hints. You would not take them. Think now, did I ever say to you that I believed John Cavendish guilty? Did I not, on the contrary, tell you that he would almost certainly be acquitted?"

"Yes, but—"

"And did I not immediately afterwards speak of the difficulty of bringing the murderer to justice? Was it not plain to you that I was speaking of two entirely different persons?"

"No," I said, "it was not plain to me!"

"Then again," continued Poirot, "at the beginning, did I not repeat to you several times that I didn't want Mr. Inglethorp arrested now? That should have conveyed something to you."

"Do you mean to say you suspected him as long ago as that?"

"Yes. To begin with, whoever else might benefit by Mrs. Inglethorp's death, her husband would benefit the most. There was no getting away from that. When I went up to Styles with you that first day, I had no idea as to how the crime had been committed, but from what I knew of Mr. Inglethorp I fancied that it would be very hard to find anything to connect him with it.

"When I arrived at the chateau, I realized at once that it was Mrs. Inglethorp who had burned the will; and there, by the way, you can not complain, my friend, for I tried my best to force on you the significance of that bedroom fire in midsummer."

"Yes, yes," I said impatiently. "Go on."

"Well, my friend, as I say, my views as to Mr. Inglethorp's guilt were very much shaken. There was, in fact, so much evidence against him that I was inclined to believe that he had not done it."

"When did you change your mind?"

"When I found that the more efforts I made to clear him, the more efforts he made to get himself arrested. Then, when I discovered that Inglethorp had nothing to do with Mrs. Raikes, and that in fact it was John Cavendish who was interested in that quarter, I was quite sure."

"But why?"

"Simply this. If it had been Inglethorp who was carrying on an intrigue with Mrs Raikes, his silence was perfectly comprehensible. But, when I discovered that it was known all over the village that it was John who was attracted by the farmer's pretty wife, his silence bore quite a different interpretation. It was nonsense to pretend that he was afraid of the scandal, as no possible scandal could attach to him.

"This attitude of his gave me furiously to think and I was slowly forced to the conclusion that Alfred Inglethorp wanted to be arrested. Eh bien! from that moment, I was equally determined that he should not be arrested."

"Wait a moment. I don't see why he wished to be arrested?"

"Because, mon ami, it is the law of your country that a man once acquitted can never be tried again for the same offense. Aha! but it was clever—his idea! Assuredly, he is a man of method. See here, he knew that in his position he was bound to be suspected, so he conceived the exceedingly clever idea of preparing a lot of manufactured evidence against himself. He wished to be suspected. He wished to be arrested. He would then produce his irreproachable alibi—and, hey presto, he was safe for life!"

"But I still don't see how he managed to prove his alibi, and yet go to the chemist's shop?"

Poirot stared at me in surprise.

"Is it possible? My poor friend! You have not yet realized that it was Miss Howard who went to the chemist's shop?"

"Miss Howard?"

"But, certainly. Who else? It was most easy for her. She is of a good height, her voice is deep and manly; moreover, remember, she and Inglethorp are cousins, and there is a distinct resemblance between them, especially in their gait and bearing. It was simplicity itself. They are a clever pair!"

"I am still a little fogged as to how exactly the bromide business was done," I remarked.

"Bon!" I will reconstruct for you as far as possible. I am inclined to think that Miss Howard was the master mind in that affair. You remember her once mentioning that her father was a doctor? Possibly she dispensed his medicines for him, or she may have taken the idea from one of the many books lying about when Mademoiselle Cynthia was studying for her exam. Anyway, she was familiar with the fact that the addition of a bromide to a mixture containing strychnine would cause the precipitation of the latter.

"Probably the idea came to her quite suddenly. Mrs. Inglethorp had a box of bromide powders, which she occasionally took at night. What could be easier than to quietly dissolve one or more of those powders in Mrs. Inglethorp's large sized bottle of medicine when it came from Coot's? The risk is practically nil.

"The tragedy will not take place until nearly a fortnight later. If anyone has seen either of them touching the medicine they will have forgotten it by that time. Miss Howard will have engineered her quarrel and departed from the house.

"The lapse of time and her absence will defeat all suspicion. Yes, it was a clever idea! If they had left it alone, it is possible the crime might never have been brought home to them. But they were not satisfied. They tried to be too clever—and that was their undoing."

Poirot puffed at his tiny cigarette, his eyes fixed on the ceiling.

"They arranged a plan to throw suspicion on John Cavendish, by buying strychnine at the village chemist's and signing the register in his hand writing.

"On Monday Mrs Inglethorp will take the last dose of her medicine. On Monday, therefore, at 6 o'clock Alfred Inglethorp arranges to be seen by a number of people at a spot far removed from the village. Miss Howard has previously made up a cock and bull story about him and Mrs Raikes to account for his holding his tongue afterwards.

"At 6 o'clock Miss Howard, disguised as Alfred Inglethorp, enters the chemist's shop with her story about a dog obtains the strychnine, and writes the name of Alfred Inglethorp in John's hand writing which she had previously studied carefully.

"But, as it will never do, if John, too, can prove an alibi, she writes him an anonymous note—still copying his hand writing which takes him to a remote spot where it is exceedingly unlikely that anyone will see him.

"So far, all goes well. Miss Howard goes back to Middlingham. Alfred Inglethorp returns to Styles. There is nothing that can compromise him in any way, since it is Miss Howard who has the strychnine, which, after all, is only wanted as a blind to throw suspicion on John Cavendish.

"But now a hitch occurs. Mrs. Inglethorp does not take her medicine that night. The broken bell. Cynthia's absence—arranged by Inglethorp through his wife—all these are wasted. And then—he makes his slip.

Hubert Stevens made small progress in his efforts to elude his captors.

"You might get killed," said Emily as [illegible] "It's [illegible] that for you, Em," he said tensely.

Lee Street Cops Contest From United Brethren

TunneySure of Victory By Fifth

Champion May Use Heeney's Temple for Target, Walsh Says

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 12—Tom Heeney won't answer the bell for the fifth round.

Perhaps I should have finished that one on an interrogation for the opinion expressed is not mine, at least not yet, and is only alleged to be that of our champion and boon associate of men of the better and finer sort, Gene Tunney himself.

Gene is supposed to have bounded up from the quilts this morning to greet the day with a glad cry, as is his wont, and since this is an accepted part of the act, there is no reason to disbelieve it in the slightest particular. He then is supposed to have retired to a neutral corner and delivered himself of the above statement. This one I adjure you to believe strictly at your own risk, merely passing it along for what it may be worth with the remark that it was sponsored by that fount of all knowledge and information, William Gibson, the champion's manager at such times as he, William, is not caught at it.

ALL the writer can venture on this subject is two pertinent observations. First, that brother Tunney at this moment looks like the exact part of a fighter who might feel that he was going to knock somebody somewhere at sometime none too distant. Second, that our champion deftly backed the writer into the clothes press or somewhere and confided in him alone the great secret of his punch and it isn't your turn to tell one yet.

From what I gathered, those deluded persons who went about fighting one another in olden times for the implied fun of the thing didn't know that the jaw was the more vulnerable—that's brother Tunney's own—and centered their punches upon the temple.

This, I gathered, proved a bit severe on the ungloved hands and so these primitive souls used this punch only when it was due to mean something.

IN brief, when the victim was deemed ready for the coup de grace—this one is mine—they popped him upon the balustrade with everything they didn't have in the wife's name and stood back to let him fall. That, it seems, is Brother Tunney all over.

"Let the mugs keep shooting at the jaw," said he, forgetting himself in his excitement. "I'm content to take the best target offered me and give it the best I have. It was punches of this sort, constantly and relentlessly applied, that wore Tom Gibbons down and made him collapse from a final fusillade to the temple, it was punches like these that put Dempsey off balance and ultimately all but exhausted him in our fights.

LET them bury their chins down on their chests and think they are getting away with something by stopping these punches with the tops of their heads. This spot may not be as vulnerable as the jaw but they will find it is susceptible enough, particularly after 10 or 12 rounds of that kind of punishment."

This didn't sound like the allegation that William Gibson had been rolling off his knife at an earlier moment and I said as much. It would seem to be of no consequence that in his ensuing comments, he failed to affirm William in this; it struck me as more significant that Tunney didn't refute him. Offhand, I should say the notion in question is sort of preying on the young man's mind.

ALSO and not off-hand, it struck me that Tunney's explanation of the current success attending his rapid fire attack is a sound one. It stands to reason that even a boxer's head might get so it wouldn't like a repetitious bashing on the same spot and in addition it seems the smart thing to do with a jaw that plays hide the button every time you heave at it.

In conclusion, it may be mentioned that Heeney is one of those chin-in-the necktie kind of rushers.

LAST YEAR'S CHAMP DROPS CLOSE MATCH AFTER HARD BATTLE

First Round Completed in President's Cup Tourney for Men

Mrs. K. M. Bower won the Women's handicap tournament of the Marion Country club yesterday afternoon when she defeated Mrs. H. R. Stoll, two up and one to go.

Mrs. Stoll won the Women's handicap tournament last year and put up a great battle to retain her title. Although the match was a handicap affair, the final tournament game was played even as both women were given the same number of strokes.

Complete First Round

First round matches in the President's cup handicap tourney were completed yesterday afternoon with 12 golfers winning to take part in the second round.

First flight scores yesterday found F. E. Mahla winning over Wilfred Schaffner, 4-3; K. M. Bower won over F. J. Longshore, two up, and Robert Owens, winner of the first handicap tournament of the season, defeated O. E. Kennedy, 7-6.

Play 19 Holes

It took 19 holes for T. R. Allen to defeat W. J. Locke, one up, in the second flight matches in the first round. Other scores in the second flight gave H. K. Mouser a win over John Dugan, two up; J. C. Woods won over H. R. Stoll, 2-1; E. H. Morgan defeated F. Wadsworth, 3-2; Carl W. Leffler won easily over C. F. LaMarche, 4-3.

Other survivors of the first round who will take part in the second session of matches are: J. H. Hane, H. W. Hane, Dan LaMarche, and E. H. Keller.

Dan Evans, R. J. LaMarche, J. Slauser and F. V. Murphy were eliminated by the above men in early matches.

GRATTAN BARS WINS PAGE DAIRY STAKES

All Entries in Toledo Race Use Sulkies Made in Marion

Grattan Bars, famous Canadian pacer who may be seen on the Marion oval when the Short Ship Circuit season opens here July 30, yesterday won the $25,000 Page Dairy stake at Toledo in straight heats.

In his first start in the grand circuit on a mile track, the Canadian horse set a mark of 1:59½ in the first heat.

An interesting feature of the race, it was learned here today, was that all 15 entries in the race pulled sulkies made in Marion.

Joe Lewis, of the Jump stables at Kenton, placed fourth in the Paige Dairy stake.

CHAMP ELIMINATED FROM TENNIS MEET

Carl Dennison Loses to St. Louis Youth at Cincinnati Tourney

Cincinnati, July 12—Carl Dennison of Youngstown, national junior tennis champion, was today eliminated from the tri-state tennis tournament being held as a result of losing to Vernon Pietjen, St. Louis, in Wednesday's junior single matches.

Pietjen dropped the first set 8-6, but came through in flashy style to take the final two sets, 8-6, and 6-3.

Other scores are:

Marjorie Gladman, Santa Monica, defeated Josephine Braneman, Cincinnati, 6-0, 6-0.

Emmett Pare, Chicago, won from Larry Tieman, Cincinnati, 6-1, and 6-2.

Walter Wirthwein, Columbus, won from the Ike Macey, Dayton, 6-3, and 6-2; and from Diafaro Kawaski, Kenyon college star, 6-3, and 6-2.

A man who has failed in life is pretty good company if he isn't too much ashamed of it.

FIND GOLF BALLS IN HAWK'S ROOST

Wildwood, N. J., July 12—The board of governors of the Wildwood golf club will vote today on the momentous question of whether a fish-hawk's nest should be removed from a tree on the ninth fairway.

One member of the board, William Hunt, will vote in the affirmative. He smacked a sparkling drive off the ninth tee yesterday but was unable to locate the ball until he noticed a commotion in the hawk's nest. Upon investigation, Hunt's ball and six others were found in the nest of the greedy bird.

DETROIT WINS FIRST VICTORY OVER YANKS

Simmons Bats in Six Runs as Athletics Defeat White Sox

New York, July 12—Andy Reese, of the Giants got five hits in as many times at bat. Babe got his thirty-third home run and Jim Bottomley collected his twentieth.

Simmons batted in six runs as the Athletics swamped the White Sox, 10 to 3. Red Faber tamed the A's in the nightcap, 5 to 1, and the Mackmen are still 11 games behind the Yankees.

Detroit beat the Yanks, 4 to 2, for the first time this season when Pipgras blew up, and it took Ruth's homer to beat them in the nightcap 6 to 5.

Cleveland, Chicago, Washington, Boston and even Detroit are waging a pretty battle for fourth place, with the first three teams changing places almost daily. Cleveland regained their first division berth yesterday by trimming Washington, 2 to 1. The Red Sox beat St. Louis, 4 to 3.

The National League scramble tightened up a bit when the Giants came from behind and nosed out the Cardinals, 6 to 4, and Brooklyn plastered a 4 to 3 defeat on Cincinnati.

Bottomley got his homer with two on in the first inning when the Cards kayoed Larry Benton, New York ace, but Bill Walker, rookie southpaw from Denver, held them to a solitary hit in the remaining eight innings.

Bill Doak's elusive spitballs and three hits by Beauty Bancroft stopped the Reds.

Pittsburgh made it five straight wins by taking a six-inning affair from the Phillies, 3 to 1. Hartnett's homer featured Chicago's 4 to 2 win over Boston.

JONES ALLOWS TWO HITS AS LOCALS WIN OVER PENNSY TEAM

Butlers Take Contest at Crestline from Railroaders, 5-0

The Crestline Pennsy railroaders were just a ball club after the Marion Butler Clothiers completed seven innings of slugging. The locals won 5 to 0, getting a total of 12 hits.

Given good support, Jones pitched a two-hit game for the locals. The contest was played in Crestline.

Tonight the Butler nine will take on the Eagles, leaders of the Commercial league, at the Erie. The contest is called for 6:15 o'clock.

MILLION FANS SEE GAMES AT STADIUM

Mark Passed During 1927 Season at Ohio State University

Columbus, July 12—Entering its seventh season of occupancy, the Ohio Stadium has been the magnet for over a million spectators at varsity football games, a check revealed today. The million mark was passed during the 1927 season.

Since 1922 when the first game was played in the Ohio State horseshoe, slightly more than 1,073,000 fans have witnessed the gridiron battles of the Scarlet and Gray. The 1928 season should raise this figure above the million and a quarter mark with several thousands to spare, it is estimated.

Old Gold hits a homer for Babe Ruth in Blindfold cigarette test

"Yes, I am well over 21 . . . so I could see no reason why I shouldn't make the blindfold test. As I tried the four leading cigarettes I kept this 'box score' on the results:

No. 1 . . . . out at first
No. 2 . . this one 'fanned'
No. 3 . . out on a pop fly
No. 4 (OLD GOLD) a home run hit!

"OLD GOLD'S mildness and smoothness marked it 'right off the bat' as the best."

Babe Ruth

On a one-step flight to the Heavens! . . .

The idol of the baseball world . . . "The King of Swat"

BABE RUTH . . . making the run in the dressing room at the Yankee Stadium. He was asked to smoke each of the four leading brands, shorted his name with black cotton between smokes. Only one question was asked: "Which one do you like best?"

Made from the finest leaves of the tobacco plant

Why do they choose OLD GOLD . . . even in the dark?

What is this superiority that wins so many famous people? It's simply honey-like smoothness . . . the new and delightful quality that OLD GOLD has added to cigarettes. And it comes from the finest leaves of the tobacco plant . . . the finest tobacco that grows. That's why you can pick OLD GOLDS with your eyes closed.

Mrs. Minnie Jones of Louisville writes: "Peterson's Ointment sure is fine for blackheads. My face was covered with them, but after using the ointment they are all gone."

And in a letter about pimples, Miss Genevieve Linehan of Bradford, Mass., writes: "I had tried almost every kind of ointment for pimples, but found none as good as Peterson's Ointment. I saw your ad in the paper and sent for a free sample and was very pleased with it and have got some more. I am on my first box and my face is nearly clear. I am very well pleased with it."

SECTION V

The Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric Company is hereby authorized to establish and maintain a schedule of maximum rates for large power users as follows:

SERVICE CHARGE:

For each kilowatt of maximum demand, as registered by a maximum demand indicator, the sum of One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents ($1.25) net per month, applicable throughout the period of this rate ordinance; plus an

ENERGY CHARGE:

For each kilowatt hour registered on the watthour meters the following charge will be made:

One and five-tenths cents (1.015) per kilowatt hour.

ADJUSTMENT FOR FLUCTUATIONS IN PRODUCTION COSTS:

The above price per kilowatt hour shall be diminished or increased in the following manner:

For every five (5) cents that the cost of ten million (10,000,000) British Thermal Units (B. T. U's) diminishes or increases below or above the cost of One Dollar and Fifty Cents ($1.50) delivered in the bins of The Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric Company's power house, in the form of coal, then the price per kilowatt hour for energy as billed under this rate, shall be diminished or increased correspondingly by the sum of twenty-five one-thousandths of one cent (.00025). This adjustment in the charge for energy to be made each month that the cost of ten million (10,000,000) British Thermal Units (B. T. U's) in the form of coal, is below or above the cost of One Dollar and Fifty Cents ($1.50) in the bins of the power house of The Columbus Delaware and Marion Electric Company and is to be based on the cost of coal for the same monthly meter reading period during which the energy was furnished. This adjustment shall be made to the nearest five (5) cent differential in the cost of ten million (10,000,000) British Thermal Units (B. T. U's). The Company shall provide a record of all of the coal received for the goenration of electrical energy, which record shall show the total cost of such fuel F. O. B. in its bins, also the quantity received and the analysis thereof. Such record shall be open to the customers purchasing energy under this rate at any time during regular business hours.

In determining the cost of ten million (10,000,000) British Thermal Units (B. T. U's) the Company shall take a fair average sample from every third car of coal received during each month. These samples shall be kept in covered receptacles, and at the end of each month the aggregate sample, reduced to the proper quantity. One-half of this sample shall then be placed in labeled fruit jars and preserved for a period of six (6) months thereafter and the balance shall be placed in the proper receptacles and forwarded to a reliable testing laboratory for analysis. The report of the testing laboratory shall be preserved by the Company in its files for the inspection of the customers purchasing energy under this rate at any time during regular business hours and the record of the analysis shall be shown in the coal record book and used in determination of this adjustment for the fluctuation in production costs. The adjustment for the fluctuation in production costs shall be applicable to large power users only.

MAXIMUM DEMAND:

The maximum demand used in computing the service charge under this rate, shall be taken as the greatest rate per hour at which energy is supplied during any fifteen (15) minute interval and a maximum demand having once been established shall not be reduced to any smaller value, excepting only that some fundamental change has occurred in the customer's load and the regular seasonal variation of the customer's maximum demand, incidental to the particular characteristics of the customer's load, shall not constitute a valid claim for any reduction in a previously established maximum demand; except that in the case of those power consumers whose periods of minimum demand are coincident with the maximum use or demands of the majority of the other customers of the Company on the Company's service, then and in this case, the Company may govern such demand charges by reasonable rules and regulations.

DISCOUNT:

Bills rendered for service and energy under this schedule shall be payable monthly and due within fifteen (15) days following the date of the bill and when paid within this period shall be subject to a discount of five (5) percent.

MINIMUM BILL:

The minimum bill per month shall be the service charge.

PRIMARY POWER:

When the customer purchases power as metered on the primary side of the transformers and furnishes and installs the transformers and all of the equipment necessary for the utilization of such power, from the line pole of the Company, then and in that case the total charge as computed under the above rate shall be subject to a further discount of five (5) percent.

TERM OF POWER CONTRACT:

The Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric Company shall contract with power customers under this schedule of rates for such a term as may be agreed upon, but all contracts shall require the Company to give the above schedule of rates and services during the life of this ordinance, subject to the standard rules and regulations of the Company, which shall be inconsistent with any of the provisions of this ordinance.

AVAILABILITY:

This schedule of rates shall be available for any customer desiring the Company's standard large power service and having requirements in excess of ten thousand (10,000) kilowatt hours per month, who will contract with the Company for a term sufficient to protect the property investment of the Company in installing and giving such service and subject to the standard rules and regulations of the Company.

SECTION VI

The Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric Company is hereby authorized to establish and maintain a schedule of maximum rates for temporary electric service as follows:

For each kilowatt hour as measured on the watthour meter, ten (10) cents, plus a

CONNECTION CHARGE:

The total estimated cost required to make the connection to, plus the estimated damage to materials, plus the other expenses incidental to, plus the estimated labor of removal of the materials after the rendering of such service such connection charge to be determined by the Company at the time the temporary service is requested.

PREPAYMENT:

The above rate and connection charge are net and shall be paid to the Company at the Company's estimated total cost for energy and connection charges, before such work and service are performed and adjustment made for the same, following the termination of such service, provided however, that if such service extends beyond the period for which prepayment has been made, that the Company may demand and collect additional payment to protect such additional service or it may discontinue service, at its option.

AVAILABILITY:

This rate shall be available to any customer desiring the Company's standard service for temporary use under the standard rules and regulations as adopted by the Company.

SECTION VII

SERVICE CHARGE:

For each kilowatt of maximum demand as contracted for the sum of Three Dollars ($3.00) net per month, applicable throughout the period of the contract, plus an

ENERGY CHARGE:

For all energy as registered by watt hour meters, at the regular rates provided for the service of the class corresponding to that taken hereunder.

DISCOUNT:

Bills rendered for service and energy under this schedule shall be payable monthly and due within fifteen (15) days following the date of the bill and when paid within this period, the charge made for the energy portion thereof shall be subject to a discount of five (5) percent.

MINIMUM BILL:

The net minimum bill shall be the service charge.

AVAILABILITY:

This rate shall be available to any customer desiring the Company's standard service for breakdown service use, under the standard rules and regulations as adjusted by the Company.

SECTION VIII

FILING OF RATE SCHEDULES:

The schedule of rates herein set forth shall be filed with the Public Utilities Commission of the State of Ohio in conformity to the law. They will be applied to the Company's contracts with its consumers.

SECTION IX

The term "Company" whenever used herein shall be held to include the successors, assigns and lessees of The Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric Company and they shall likewise be bound by the terms and conditions of this ordinance.

SECTION X

Woman's Work Is Outside The Home

WRITES A WOMAN: "YOUR ADvertising of used cars as 'family cars' means more to me than I can say."

"A second car would be more than a luxury in our family. After my husband drives away in the morning I have to take our daughter to school. It's quite a way off and I want to be sure that's she gets there safely. Then I have to go to market—I do my best but I haven't the time to shop for the best I can get for our budget. Then I want to be sure my little girl gets back safely . . . Some days it is raining or snowing . . And I must confess that I'd like to see more friends and take a real interest in civic matters. But what can a woman do? Though her business is outside the home, too, SHE hasn't the use of a car."

The cars which we are taking in trade offer women an opportunity to have cars of their own at low price. And their purchase may be arranged on General Motors plan of payments—the G. M. A. C. Plan.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, July 12—Markets that dominated principally grief with every fluctuation yesterday carried wheat and rye down to new low levels, while lifting corn upward. But the strength in corn was not up to expectations.

At the close wheat was down 2⅝@3c; corn was up ⅝@1⅛c; oats were unchanged to ⅛c higher; rye was down 2@3c.

The government's estimate of the corn crop in its July report of Tuesday afternoon did not produce the results that enthusiastic bulls hoped for. Corn opened sharply higher, but it began to fall away from its tops immediately.

The December future showed the biggest bulge at the start, selling at 85 cents, but it showed the smallest net gain at the end of the session. That means something, if only the market analyst could find out certainly what.

Corn Situation Stale?

Forgetting everything about the corn situation except that there has been persistent effort to bull corn for months and that the government report was bullish, and applying these memories to the action of the market one might come to the conclusion that the bull situation in corn has gone stale.

If that is the truth it is only a question of time when the December future will begin to give way, as the cash did. It may have temporary advances from the present level, but the selling it met with yesterday at the opening suggests that on those advances there will be plenty of offerings.

Students of the government's crop figures were beginning to see that if with bad prospects it was possible last year for a crop to be harvested that was more than 500,000,000 bushels larger than the government's estimate in July, it is not impossible for the harvest this year with good prospects to be at least that much larger than the July figures this year.

Big Crop Possible

That would mean a crop of over 3,200,000,000 bushels, one of the largest ever raised.

But though the government figures do not indicate this, they do indicate what has repeatedly been pointed out here: the absurdity of the whole crop reporting system, so far as it provides any reliable indication of what a yield will be. Last year's estimate in July—short 500,000,000 of what the crop actually was—sufficiently indicates the worthlessness of such forecasts as a basis for prediction.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged to 2c lower; corn was ⅛ to 3c up; oats were unchanged; rye was quiet; barley was 1 to 2c lower.

Our Service Department has arranged to give Hudson & Essex owners prompt and thorough service in above operations at a very reasonable cost.

Nothing will take the "joy out of life" much quicker than to start out on a pleasure jaunt and have your car "balk" on you when the nearest Authorized Service Station is many miles away.

It is a wonderful feeling to be optimistic in life but this feeling of optimism will not get you to a garage should your car fail you on the road.

CHAUTAUQUA PLEDGES THIS YEAR TOTAL 200 MORE THAN 1927 RECORD

Non-Subscription Sale for Annual Event To Start Next Monday

Two hundred more tickets for the Marion County Independent Chautauqua, have been pledged this year than last, according to a check-up made by the Chautauqua committees.

Non-subscription tickets will go on sale through the Chautauqua organization Monday of next week. Subscribers are given the opportunity to sell their tickets before the drive begins.

Chautauqua will be presented July 26, 27, 28 and 30 and 31 at Chautauqua pavilion, Garfield park.

Opening Numbers

The first two numbers on Thursday, July 26, will be plays presented by the Bergmann Play company. "To the Ladies" a comedy, will be given at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and "Smilin' Through," a mystic-comedy drama, at 8 p. m.

"To the Ladies," will be an especial treat for Marion Chautauqua-goers. The long and prosperous run of the play on Broadway is said to be due to the fact that it bears out its alluring title—that at last "Mere Man" has consented to give "Fluent Wife" a mite of credit. There is a natural flow of humor and sparkling comedy. George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, the authors, have peopled the play with realistic human beings.

Lecture Is Feature

Another feature attraction, scheduled for 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, will be the lecture by Mrs. Demarchus Brown on the subject, "In the Footsteps of Livingstone."

Few American women are so well qualified by experience and education as is Mrs. Brown to appear on the chautauqua platform. She has traveled extensively in Europe, Africa and Asia Minor and has a number of interesting stories to tell of these countries. She is a profound student of literature with an attractive personality, unusual platform ability and an informative message.

The "family group" pictured above is one of the scenes from "To the Ladies," the comedy play to be presented by members of the Bergmann Play company, as the opening number of the Marion County Independent Chautauqua this year.

STARTS CONTEST

Cash Prizes To Be Paid School Children for Best Letters

With a view to educating both automobile drivers and children to the need of caution in driving and crossing streets, J. B. Owens, president of the American Guaranty Co., of Ohio, has announced a letter-writing contest open to all eighth grade school children of Ohio. The letters are to be of not more than 100 words each, asking the motorist to practice safety for children first and telling what precautionary measures should be taken.

The contest closes Aug. 1. Eight cash awards will be given the writers of letters judged the most constructive.

Letters may be mailed to the Columbus office or to the company's agents in this city, A. W. Kette, G. Farr Earle, and the Llewellyn Insurance agency.

OHIO HAS LARGE FEDERAL AID FUND

Over $4,000,000 Available for Roads, Local Auto Club Is Informed

There is a total of $4,081,176 in federal aid funds available for new road projects in Ohio, according to information from Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, secretary of the Marion Auto club, based on figures received from the American Automobile association, with which the local club is affiliated.

This fund, Mrs. Gallagher said, together with the money being spent on projects under construction and those approved, assures that this valuable assistance to state highway building will continue on the past scale, which has given the nation one of the finest systems of roads in the world. Only two other states, California, which has $1,321,695, and Texas, with $6,188,200, have sums greater than Ohio.

"One of the last acts of the session of the seventieth congress just closed," said the secretary, "was the passage of the bill authorizing appropriations of $75,000,000 annually for 1930 and 1931, assuring continuation of federal aid. This measure was signed by President Coolidge during the last days of the session and has been promulgated as a law."

She also declared that one of the significant features of the session of the congress just ended was the definite stand with organized motorists by both senate and house leaders to repell any attempts to interfere with the road-building program of the nation.

"There were numerous attempts to strike at the federal aid policy through measures for express highways, new surveys and in other ways, but it is considered by motorists as a tribute to congress that not a single one of these proposals received serious consideration," Mrs. Gallagher said.

The officials of the club have been advised by the American Automobile association that the balance of federal aid funds now available for new projects amounts to $84,115,118, while there is more than $125,000,000 represented in projects under construction and more than $28,000,000 in projects already approved.

Ritzy Rosalie

Rosalie's escort for the evening must be a gentleman who does not prefer blondes, for she has hidden her golden tresses under a silk wig. It may be recalled that colored wigs were introduced some years ago, but were short-lived. The latest silk wigs for evening wear, however, show a variety of colors, and Rosalie is wearing one to match her gown. The waves are formed by stitching, as in the white silk wigs which have been worn in the past.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

W. B. Caldwell, M.D. AT AGE 83

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time and that of how much one tries to avoid it, of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is a pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs you of strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist, and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

Do You Ever Fall For This Discount Bunk?

by

H. R. MAPES

Mr. "Special Discount" rolls out a tire and says "I'll give you this $20 tire for $15. You're a good friend and I'm giving you twenty-five per cent off the regular price."

Do you fall?

Lots of fellows do! It's the old game of making the buyer think he's getting a better price than anybody else.

The fact that they may be paying Mr. "Special Discount" $15 for a $14 tire never occurs to them! That song about "twenty-five per cent off" sounds so loud they can't think! Somebody gets stung, and it isn't foxy "S. D."

We don't kid our customers.

The price we name on your tire is the very lowest price at which GOODYEAR quality tires can be sold!

We could call a $20 tire a $40 tire and offer you a 50 per cent discount.

But—we don't do business that way!

We sell only Goodyear Tires. We think that the only way to keep the biggest tire business in town is to handle the best tires we know about.

And when we quote a price—that's the price, and it's honest. It's the price that means you're getting your money's worth. It's the same price everybody pays—whether it's a cash deal, a trade-in, or on monthly account.

Come on over. We haven't any funny discount stories to tell you, but we can show you excellent merchandise, priced fairly and above-board.

Use our service station. Free inspection, inflation and advice.

JURY FINDS KOON GUILTY OF MURDER

Decision Reached After Deliberating Two Hours and 20 Minutes

liberating the room was still packed when the men returned to the box. Mrs. Henry Foos, widow of the slain man, and her daughter, Mrs. George Bird, remained for the verdict.

No Demonstration

The return of the jury was received quietly by the large audience and within two minutes after the return of the jury the courtroom was deserted. There was no demonstration. Even during the trial the sweltering mass that packed the courtroom was orderly. Only on one occasion was there anything that even slightly resembled a demonstration. A statement made by Prosecutor Frank Wiedemann during his final argument before the jury drew a brief applause from one person. Order was immediately restored by Court Bailiff J. M. Davidson.

The jury returned to the box for additional instructions from Judge Scofield after being out for an hour and 10 minutes. The buzz of the jury bell broke suddenly upon the low hum of voices in the courtroom. Instantly the courtroom was silent. Court officers returned to their posts and the bailiff was sent to the jury room. Believing that a verdict was to be returned the audience waited expectantly. It was apparent, however, that a verdict had not been reached as there was no announcement to that effect by the bailiff.

Return to Box

On returning to the box, Miles Longabore, the foreman of the jury, asked Judge Scofield if a verdict of guilty on the second count in the indictment, which charged murder while committing a robbery, carried the death penalty. Judge Scofield read the section of his charge covering this count. The jury again retired to its room. In another hour and 10 minutes the verdict of "guilty" was reached.

According to unofficial reports today the verdict was reached on the ninth ballot.

The argument of Attorney Johnson, the final state's argument by Prosecutor Wiedemann, and the charging of the jury by Judge Scofield completed the trial yesterday afternoon.

Basing his argument on the contention that Koon's entry into the Foos house during the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Foos was not robbery but housebreaking, Attorney Johnson attempted to prove that the murder was not committed in the perpetration of a robbery. Not until Koon saw a black handbag containing two pocket books was there any robbery involved in the case. This was not until after the attack on Mr. Foos by Koon, the attorney contended.

Elaborate Argument

Attorney Johnson's argument before the jury was an elaboration of the argument he had used in the morning in an attempt to have the second count of the indictment set aside. Had he been successful in this move it is likely that he would have saved the life of the prisoner. The motion however, was overruled by the court.

For the jury to have found Koon guilty on the first charge of the indictment, which was "murder," it would have been necessary for the state to prove premeditation. Proof of premeditation was not involved in the second count.

Pleading for law enforcement, Prosecutor Wiedemann asked the jurymen to tell potential murders by their verdict that wanton killing was not licensed in Marion county. He told the jury that the aged Mr. Foos was the second man to die at the hands of the prisoner who had a record in the Ohio penitentiary and the Mansfield reformatory.

He painted a word picture of the scene in the Foos home following the attack on the aged pair, that held the audience in rapt attention.

Public interest in court proceedings here was at its highest pitch in many years during the murder trial. For three days the courtroom was jammed to capacity. Several persons even came this morning not knowing that the trial was over. Many who were fortunate enough to get seats yesterday morning held them during the noon recess of an hour and a half. A number had brought their lunch.

Whether or not Attorney Johnson will appeal the case in case the motion for a new trial is overruled, is not known. Even if the hearing on the motion is held this week and is overruled the prisoner will not be sentenced this week.

Three days are allowed defense attorneys for filing motion for a new trial. This time must elapse before the prisoner can be sentenced.

In the meantime Koon is being held at the county jail pending the outcome of the hearing.

TWO OF NOBILE PARTY RESCUED

pull him through to safety, was the one member of the group to die.

The first radiogram from the Krassin gave no details, but it is presumed that the men are being taken to port—probably the nearest available port on the coast of North East land.

Malmgren and his two companions had virtually been given up as dead although Gen. Umberto Nobile, in a recent interview, said he felt positively they would be found alive.

When Prof. Malmgren's companions, Capt. A. Mariano and Capt. Filippo Zappi, were carried aboard the Krassin they fell upon their knees before Capt. Samoyolovich, master of the ship, sobbing with joy and calling upon heaven to shower its blessing upon the brave seaman.

Legs Frozen

Mariano's legs are frozen. He is in a serious condition as it is feared that gangrene may set in.

Zappi said that Prof. Malmgren had died a month ago, but that his body had been kept in hope that they would be rescued and it could be given a Christian burial. It was frozen stiff when taken aboard the Krassin.

The members of the Malmgren party suffered the utmost agonies of body and mind. Death from starvation and exposure faced them continuously as they drifted in the desolate arctic sea, the only sound being the grinding of the ice fields and the crash of colliding bergs.

They were so weak and their movements were so hampered that they had difficulty in getting enough exercise to keep from freezing to death. When they left the Nobile party on May 25 to seek the coast of North East land or Foyne island the men carried what they thought was enough concentrated food—chiefly pemmican—for 45 days. They had expected to reach land in a few days—a week at the utmost.

Stranded on Floe

In attempting to cross to the coast line they began traversing a floe that was detached by the current and wind and carried into the open water. They found themselves helpless. They had no wireless equipment and their only hope was in being sighted by an aviator or a stray whaler.

Although Malmgren was a strong man physically and used to the rigors of the far north, he was the first to weaken. After his death the other two were able to increase their rations somewhat. The only water they had was from melted snow and surface ice, which was not salty.

Day after day they scanned the horizon for a searching plane, only to be disappointed. Although in the last stages of weakness they struggled to their feet with two small flags in their hands when the Russian airman at last, after what had seemed an eternity, soared into view in the gray arctic sky.

WITHOUT FOOD FOR 13 DAYS

Moscow, July 12—The two survivors of the Malmgren party were rescued by the Russian ice breaker Krassin at 6:40 a. m. today, Greenwich mean time, the captain of the steamship reported by radio. Captain A. Mariano and Captain Filippo Zappi, the survivors, said that Professor Finn Malmgren died as a result of the terrible cold and exertion a month ago while their floating floe was off Brock Island. Mariano and Zappi had been without food 13 days when they were saved. They were in extremely weakened condition from exposure and starvation.

With Raskob as Leader, Party Appears as Friendly to Big Interests

cess, carried this state by an overwhelming majority. I, a Democrat, carried it, too. But Mr. Coolidge carried it notwithstanding the admitted great ability and outstanding character of John W. Davis. It puzzled me then, and it has puzzled me since how Mr. Coolidge could carry New York and I carry it at the same time.

"I have come to the conclusion that it was because business does not trust a Democratic national administration, because the Republicans for years have spread the canard of 'hard times' and business lack of faith is a national Democratic administration.

"Well, gentleman, this year we will show business that it can have confidence in the Democratic party. John J. Raskob, of General Motors, and my friend, will be national chairman."

That ended that. The party broke up, and 10 hours later the national committee ratified the governor's choice. The new Smith dynasty was in the saddle.

The mere fact that Raskob, heretofore not affiliated actively with any party though listed a Republican, is at the head of the Democratic organization is itself enough assurance to the business interests of the country that they can confidently support Governor Smith, according to the supporters of Smith's friends today. And the new chairman was quick to follow up the line taken in his speech of acceptance handling of vast relief problems will be stressed throughout the campaign. Special efforts likewise will be made to organize business men's clubs and to interest in behalf of Hoover the thousands of business men who seldom take an active interest in politics.

Raskob Appointment Solidifies Sentiment Favoring Business Issues

Hoover leaders were nonplussed by the Raskob appointment. They would not comment for publication but several party spokesmen indicated they felt the Democrats had scored first blood in the coming campaign. The action of Raskob in accepting the appointment, it was felt, would be looked upon in business circles as an endorsement of Smith by one of the great industrial groups of the country.

The action of Raskob, however, in declaring that Smith, if elected president, would take steps to modify the prohibition law, was welcomed by the Hoover leaders. They seemed to favor having the Democrats take the wet side of the prohibition issue, so it can be used in the south and dry western states. The party's policy, however, in eastern states and particularly on the moist Atlantic seaboard will be determined by Hoover himself and announced in his acceptance speech.

Leaves Saturday

Hoover will leave Saturday night for his Palo Alto, Calif., home and will use his westward trip for conferences with Republican leaders along the way. He also will make frequent rear platform appearances to greet crowds but will avoid all public discussions of political questions until the notification ceremony.

Hoover will be accompanied part of the way by Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, newly named head of the New York speakers bureau. In Chicago, the nominee and Mrs. Hoover will spend Sunday afternoon at the home of Vice President and Mrs. Dawes. He also will confer there with James W. Good, western manager, and Representative Walter H. Newton, of Minnesota, who will have command of the Chicago speakers' bureau. Then, the nominee will go to Brule, Wis., for a conference with President Coolidge.

After leaving the president's summer home Tuesday night, Hoover will go west through Omaha, where he will make a two-hour stop next Wednesday to confer with corn belt leaders. He will arrive in San Francisco for a public reception there Friday, July 20, and then go to Palo Alto to rest until the notification ceremony.

Four World Records Made Today by U. S. Seaplane

Philadelphia, July 12—Four world records for seaplanes were established at the Philadelphia navy yards today by the XPN-12, piloted by Lieut. A. W. Gorton and Chief Boatswain E. C. Rieber.

The first record was the endurance record for seaplanes carrying a 2,000 kilogram load at 3:22 a. m. Twenty minutes later a new stage record was set. Next came a speed record for seaplanes carrying such a load which was double the ordinary load of planes of this type. Shortly before 9 o'clock the fourth record was established when the plane broke the same record for planes carrying 1,000 kilograms.

LOCAL YOUTH WINS HONOR AT MEETING

Glenn Duffey Returns Home from B. Y. P. U. Convention at Kansas City

Returns Home

Duffey, who arrived home at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was 36 hours on his way to the convention and 37½ hours on the return trip. He stopped at hotels, his entire expenditures amounting to $28.80. Young Duffey "walked" only about 10 of the entire 1,500 miles, riding in four different automobiles on the way to Kansas City and in three returning. He did most of his walking on the other side of St. Louis, enroute to the convention, he said. Jones arrived at the convention after five days on the road. He left home with just $4.50 and arrived with only 14 cents. He obtained work at the convention to earn money for the return trip, which was also to be made "by foot".

The group picture is of the San Francisco delegation who will be hosts to the convention in 1930. Next year the convention will be held in Detroit. Duffey plans to attend both sessions.

Dale Gorman, 352 Girard av., was also a delegate from Trinity Baptist B. Y. P. U. He was one of the speakers Sunday morning when the Ohio delegation of 21 young people, conducted the service at the Ruby Avenue Baptist church. He served as transportation manager for the Ohio group.

Wins Fifth Place

Honorable mention was given Duffey for winning fifth place in a "publicity" contest carried on during the past three months. Thirty-six states were entered in the contest, which required a specified number of cartoons relative to B. Y. P. U. work to be made during the interval.

Duffey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Duffey, is president of the Senior B. Y. P. U. of Trinity church. He graduated this year from Harding High school and is now employed as assistant window trimmer at the Uhler-Phillips Co.

Among the interesting speakers at the convention were John Singleton of Chicago, president of the Baptist Young People's Union of America and Dr. C. Wallace Petty, pastor of the First Baptist church of Pittsburgh.

They Didn't Employ a Band.

The diversion, during the course of the past four years, of 100,000 gallons of whisky and alcohol valued at $1,000,000 from a New York warehouse in which it had been concentrated by government dry enforcement officers has led to the arrest of six men, five of them employes in the warehouse, and search is being made for a New York business man who is held to have been the brains of the steal.

The plan followed was very simple. Trucks loaded with barrels were driven into a court in the rear of a building adjoining the warehouse. A hose was passed through a window and the liquor siphoned from the barrels inside the warehouse to the barrels upon the trucks. When the latter had been filled, the hose was withdrawn, the window closed and the trucks were driven away.

Of course, had the trucks in each of the trips made by them been headed by a brass band and followed by a dozen elephants and a calliope the attention of the warehouse guards and the city police authorities might have been attracted to them possibly a year or two sooner, but let us not be captious. There's so much going on in New York to divert attention.

Give Credit Where Credit Is Due.

Do you give too much credit to the educated man and too little credit to the one who is unschooled and self-made?

College men are not the only ones who possess good judgment.

Education is most valuable because of its mind training.

Often there is little mind to train—what then?

Not infrequently the college man has studied just enough to pass his examinations, and not enough to retain his knowledge.

A college can not supply the foundation for good judgment.

Education can not impart good judgment.

There must be real caliber, brain capacity, an appreciation of the meaning of poise and balance, to make college education worth while.

The man without a college education should not be denied a chance just because he does not possess a sheepskin.

If he has done even fairly well it is a great recommendation to his general ability, and ability is what counts.

A Civilization of 13,000 Years Ago.

Professor Arturo Posnansky, scientist and founder of the Tiahuanacu museum at La Paz, Bolivia, and Dr. Rolf Muller, sub-director of the astronomical observatory at Potsdam, have scientifically established the fact that the Tiahuanacan priests studied astronomy and took astronomical observation 13,000 years ago. They have just returned to La Paz after having spent months in the study of the prehistoric ruins on the banks of Lake Titicaca, having timed their trip so as to be in position to study the sun, mooon and stars at the time of the summer solstice.

According to a statement made by the two scientists and cabled throughout the world, the ancients probably used the polar stars to determine the meridian, establishing with very fine metals the culmination of some of them. Thus they determined a line running exactly south which they marked with a great white sign painted on the side of a mountain of rock nine miles from Tiahuanacu. This could be distinguished from the observatory in the temple of the sun, appearing about the size of an egg. This sign also served the ancients for building their edifices in line with the meridian.

Years ago Professor Posnansky announced his theory that the ancient Tiahuanacans knew mathematically the angle of ecliptic obliquity. He surmised this because the temple of the sun is so constructed that it forms a square including an angle, the vertex of which, situated in the middle of the west wall, is the amplitude of the sun between the two solstices or double the obliquity of the ecliptic of that ancient age.

According to Posnansky, this enabled him to determine the age of the temple as 13,000 years, establishing it as the oldest granite temple of the sun in the world.

It was an emotional moment for Dr. Muller, so he reports, when, with Posnansky, he proved mathematically the rising of the sun over the enormous rock which in Tiahuanacu signified the beginning of the winter or the sowing solstice.

The manner in which the two scientists proceeded to determine that these records of the observations by the ancient priests were made 13,000 years ago is beyond our understanding, possibly beyond that of any one not a scientist, but what they found, told in simple terms is this. A record of a line due north and south, a record of a line along which the rays of the sun ran at the time of the summer solstice and two lines running in the shape of a "V" with the point in the center of the west wall of the temple. From this point one line ran across the top of the temple in a northeasterly direction and the other in a southeasterly direction. The former line pointed to the sun when that body reached the northernmost point of its journey and the latter was in line with the point reached by the sun when it was at the end of its journey southward.

The more we study the past and the records left by the people of the past, the greater becomes our respect for those who were here thousands and thousands of years before us. We have made wonderful strides in a scientific way in the last century, but occasionally we come upon records which must be taken as proof that much that we know and have assumed to be matters of comparatively recent discovery were known to people of a time far back beyond all records of history. And the more we learn, the more evident becomes the conclusion that the New world, many thousands of years ago, had a civilization comparable with any of which we have evidence in the Old.

United States Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, has been mentioned as one on whom the Prohibitionists and the Farmer-Laborites might unite for a presidential candidate. It develops that twenty-one sections of the statutes of Kansas deal with steamboats and that there isn't a single steamboat in or owned in the state, the laws having been passed when Kansas legislators were enthusiastic over the possibility that the streams of the state might be used for highways. Ohio isn't the only state, apparently, burdened with obsolete laws.

NEST MATES.

Wrong Food and Dandruff.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Of all the diseases attacking the skin, dandruff is the most common. It is known to the medical profession as "pityriasis capitis." Pityriasis is derived from a Greek word meaning "Bran." So you see the medical term is wisely chosen. "Bran-like scales of the head," is a term well describing the trouble.

There are diseases attacking other parts of the body which are similar to dandruff. Multitudes of scales form. When they are brushed off, more scales appear.

A disease forming scales in the hair becomes doubly disagreeable. It can not be dealt with as it can on exposed surface. The scales pile up on the scalp, cling to the roots of the hair, and produce a disagreeable "mess."

In dandruff if the scales are permitted to accumulate, there will follow more irritation and itching of the scalp. This makes an annoying symptom.

The oil-producing glands of the scalp are overactive in the dandruff disease. This increased activity causes excessive oiliness of the hair and, in turn, it results in the development of more and more scales.

Wrong eating, especially of excessive amounts of fats, like butter, cream and pork, is another aggravating factor.

We hear a lot about germs. There are serious doubts about any germs being the cause of this condition. To say the least, the germ origin of the trouble has not been proven.

There is no reason why a male should have any particular trouble in removing the disagreeable scales. It is merely a matter of cleanliness. But it is different with a woman. It is a real task to wash and dry a great mass of long hair. A man can easily and quickly cleanse the hair and scalp. While he will not remove the cause of dandruff, he will have his scalp so clean that no evidence of the trouble will be noticed for several days after a good shampoo.

In washing the hair use a good soap. There are so-called "hard-water soaps," made to form a good lather with hard water. Wet the hair, work up a good lather, rub it into the scalp with the ends of the fingers, and then rinse it out. Having done this well, repeat the process. The second washing will cut the grease and take away the scales.

The secret of the successful shampoo lies in the thoroughness of the rinsing. There should be an abundance of water used, gallons of it. Unless the soap is entirely removed, it, in turn, will add scales to a dandruff-covered scalp.

A man who has oily, dandruff-filled hair should clean his head this way twice a week. I do not believe good soap and clean water will do the least bit of harm and I know that the scalp can be made sweet and clean by this procedure.

Whether a woman is to be relieved of dandruff depends on her willingness to give the hair frequent shampoos. The hair can not be sweet if more than ten days elapse between washings.

Editorial Opinion.

OCCUPATION OF THE RHINELAND.

Germany continues her undismayed efforts to persuade France to abandon her indefinite occupation of the Rhineland. As the new chancellor, Herr Mueller, recently took over the reins of government, he seized upon the occasion to voice a new appeal for withdrawal. Stresemann, Von Hindenberg, Loebe have each pled eloquently in the past year to the same end. The thorn festers in Germany's side.

No adequate answer has been given by France to these pleas. It is of course true that, under the terms of the Versailles treaty, she is entitled to keep the Rhineland garrisoned by her troops for the next seven years. But it is a truth accepted both by her and the world at large that her security against a possible German attack was the basis for this provision of the treaty, and there is today no evidence which warrants the belief that such a course on Germany's part is dreamed of in that nation. Germanic and French relations, thanks to a disposition on the former's part sincerely to perform the heavy obligations justly incurred under the Versailles treaty and to the economic interdependence of both nations in post-war Europe, grow more and more amicable. The serious allegations in last year's Guillemat report, which represented Germany as in the course of secretly arming, have been examined into and found without semblance of adequate basis.

Just why, these things being true, France should persist in her course of maintaining her troops on German soil is difficult, upon the surface of things, to understand. The policy to which she is apparently wedded is an expensive one and France is far from being in a position to conduct herself extravagantly. It is patently opposed to the upbuilding of good will between her and her neighbor, and France is vigorous in her protestations that she desires that good will. But one need not dig very deeply beneath the surface to understand the genuine factor in the case.

France is today occupying the Rhineland for only one reason, which is that she figures that her evacuation thereof has a substantial bargaining value. Hard pressed to make both ends meet, she knows that Germany would pay cash to be rid of the humiliation of the presence of her troops in the Coblenz area, and intends to make the most of that fact. German bonds, floated in America, would supply Germany with the asking price, and the American dollar so obtained could in the end be used to pay France's obligations to us. So France figures. And who, under the circumstances, can blame her. And as the time grows shorter and shorter until January 1, 1935, and the thorn of the French occupation grows more irksome to the German republic—we may expect to see negotiations along the indicated lines opened in the not too distant future.—Washington Star.

BETTER FACILITIES.

The New York Central is putting into operation on its Buffalo-New York division a de luxe day coach service, believed to be its answer to motor transportation which in recent years has cut deeply into the passenger business of the railroads. The new coach provides individual seats and screened windows. To these de luxe trains is to be added an observation car, for all of which special facilities no additional charge will be made.

These trains, it is said, will be put into operation as an experiment to determine whether improved facilities will draw back to the railroads any considerable portion of the local traffic now lost to the bus and to the privately owned automobile. If the experiment proves successful more equipment of this type will be built by the New York Central. Probably other rail lines also would make similar improvements.

Whether improved facilities will draw back passenger traffic which has been lost remains to be seen. There is some indication, however, that the cost of automobile operation is beginning to be appreciated by car owners and that many are realizing for the first time that public transportation is cheaper than private.

It is a bit significant that the railroads should be giving consideration to their passenger business. Their disposition for many years was to look upon freight as the important part of their business and to regard passenger traffic hardly more than a necessary evil. They have discovered, however, in the past few years that the loss of revenue from that source is not easily made up from other kinds of traffic. And most of them are in need of all the revenue they can get in order to meet high operating costs and an overhead which any other industry would find prohibitive. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Magic Sugar Making.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

The chemist's surprise us every little while with a new "synthetic product," i. e., some imitation of or substitute for a natural product, which they have succeeded in "putting together"—synthesis means that—by employing nature's elements in some way that nature herself had not thought of using, or not cared to use. In this manner man is beginning—on a small scale as yet, to be sure—to become his own manufacturer of things for which during all the past thousands of years of human history he has depended solely on the bounty or the favor of nature.

The latest notable achievement of this kind is the making of synthetic sugar by two Swedish chemists, Professors A. Pictet and Hans Vogel. Science News says that chemists have been working in vain on this problem during the past fifty years. That shows the intensity of man's fondness for sweets, which perhaps equals his love of gold.

The problem was solved, as was to have been expected, my manipulating the atoms of the substances used. Ordinary sugar is made from sugar cane or sugar beets. It can be chemically "split" by the use of acids so as to form two different sugars, one of which is called glucose—which is usually made from corn—while the other is "fructose," which can be obtained from the Jerusalem artichoke. Now, the point was, given glucose and fructose to start with, how to put them together chemically so as to transform them into ordinary sugar, or sucrose. There was where the hitch occurred—the two would not combine as desired, notwithstanding the fact that they could be "split" from sucrose, in which nature had known how to combine them. The key was discovered by Professor Pictet when he found that fructose exists in two forms identical in composition, but differing simply in the arrangement of their atoms. By choosing a particular form of fructose, called the "gamma" form, he caused it to combine with an equal quantity of glucose, the combination product being the desired sucrose.

But this process is difficult and expensive, so that it gives no promise of the hills of sugar candy that children's imagination sometimes depict. To produce a single barber's pole candy stick in this way might cost a fortune. Science has triumphed, but not yet commerce. Nevertheless, the triumph is highly important because of the new possibilities that it opens up. From this beginning the history of such things warrants the hope that further experiments and discoveries on the same line may enable chemists to make a variety of new kinds of sugar, of varying degrees of sweetness and flavor, and that it will be free from some of the objections that medical doctors find to nature-made sugar. A hint of the atomic magic practiced by Professor Pictet may be given in this way:

To make the glucose and the fructose combine into sugar he joined to each molecule of glucose and fructose four molecules of acetic acid—which is practically vinegar—and when the desired product was obtained he called in the molecules of alkali to dispose of the vinegar. Such things man has found out how to do by going down into the molecular subcellars of nature, which no microscope can magnify into visibility, though the cunning chemist can work there with plenty of mental elbow room.

Mohammedan Facts and Feasts.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

One of the most important of the Mohammedan festivals is Ramadan. Occurring during the ninth month of their calendar, it may well be called the Mohammedan Lent.

During this time every day, from sunrise to sunset, is a period of strenuous fasting for the true believer. Not a drop of water may pass his lips, not a morsel of food. Tobacco in every form is eschewed.

But the instant of sunset is the signal for a change. Restaurants and cafes throw open their doors. Merrymakers throng the streets, and a veritable carnival starts. Feasting and dancing are the order of the night.

Of course, the mosques are open all the time during this month, and are always jammed to the doors.

On the 15th day of the Ramadan, the sultan himself appears. In a splendid procession, he leaves the Yildiz palace in Pera, crosses the Bosphorus to Stamboul, to kiss the coat of Mohammed. This is the only time in the year that the sultan shows himself in Stamboul.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, July 12—The utter boredom of a so-called smart crowd in New York is a social phenomenon quite unexplainable to the casual onlooker parked behind a palm and filled with an eye-bulging curiosity. Expected gaiety merely crystallizes into a luxurious yawn.

One wonders why these people, rated as those "who belong," go out in public at all. The dispirited manner is especially marked in cases. They enter in the hushed fashion of those who have come to take a last look at the remains. There is not a smile in a train load.

They sit at the tables in such a tight-lipped silence that one longs for what vaudeville terms "a belly laugh." A languid hand extended to some passing acquaintance appears to be the only show of activity. They do not talk. They merely indulge in monosyllabic murmur.

Even the waiters seem to be touched by the melancholy. You would not be greatly surprised if they cried a little in your soup. While this seeming prostration is largely a pose, there is little doubt most of them are affected by the tedium of the squirrel in the revolving cage.

In country boy fashion I have read all my life of "society's dizzy whirl." A close-up reveals it as not even a half turn. It is a view of a crowd of mostly uninteresting people nibbling at expensive food and staring in the detached manner of a stage Ophelia.

Once in awhile one of those "How have you b-e-e-n?" gushers pranses into the room, but you can see he is a headache. The crowd wants to wallow in its ennui. Their noticeable lack of concession to ordinary manners has long been a topic among the Emily Post alumnae.

Dowagers do not hesitate to hoist an aristocratic lorgnette rudely to inspect the stranger from Sinking Springs. Flip debutantes take a delight in a public hitch of the stocking or a free hand smear of rouge and otherwise showing off for hoi polloi.

It is fair to say New York society class consciousness is in the minority. There is a stratum in every type of humanity that predicates the show off. But there are members of New York's society the public never sees. And perhaps it is just as well.

Indeed there is a section of the "400" referred to as "cafe society." They flit from cafe to cafe and night club to night club. The austere members of aristocracy are rarely seen in cafes.

Among the extreme upper crust social mingling is limited. There are few intimates outside of the immediate family and their lives are devoted largely to charity. A notable example of a younger matron upholding this social quality is Mrs. Vincent Astor, who is seldom seen in public save at charity events where she is among the patronesses.

Another bit of gossip from the social realm concerns several debutante church weddings that were delayed from a half hour to an hour the past year as the result of pre-ceremony cocktail parties indulged by ushers, bridesmaids, maids of honor, best men and other attendants. At one a substitute best man had to be rushed into service at the last moment, the real best man having toppled from his auto at the church curb and folded up like an accordion.

Class distinction among society debutantes is so pronounced in New York they are in three grades—A, B, C—and are thus listed by society editors.

Personal social activities in grade Z at the moment concern a chill engagement on west Forty-Ninth street, where my prominence always gets me the best stool. And I'm also a card in chop suey joints.

The Way of the World.

A wealthy Long Island man bought a chateau which was built in France in 1640. His idea is to take it down and rebuild it over here. He will have something different. If the folks who used to live in it were alive they could tell some interesting tales about their own times. Many things happened in that wonderful seventeenth century. Shakespeare, Milton, Bunyan were producing work that was destined to live forever. And little things, certain to influence the industrial life of the world, were beginning. In that century Europe drank its first cup of tea and its first coffee. Galileo, a few years before, had made a telescope and had begun to teach men to look about the universe and to wonder.

Will the new occupants of this historic house think often of the fascinating years of long ago or will they miss it all?

Somebody wonders just what it is that civilization rests upon. Church leaders declared at a conference that prosperity rests on the church. Take the church out of the city and business would go bankrupt. So say pastors. But civilization rests on more than the church. Take science out of life and the world would be in darkness. Take the schools out of life and we would leap back toward barbarism. Civilization is supported not by one but by many pillars.

A thinker may be lettered or unlettered. He may never write more than his name and rarely that. Robert Fulton, with the idea of a steamboat, was a thinker. By his thinking he revolutionized the transportation of the world. The Wrights were thinkers. Others laughed while they thought. Michael Owens was a thinker. Some probably called him a tinker, but he was not discouraged by the "can't be done" crowd. He thought out a machine that revolutionized the bottle making industry of the world.

Local Drum Corps, Marching Club To Attend Eagles Meet

Plans for the part the local lodge will play in the national and state convention of the Eagles lodge to be held in Columbus next month, were completed at the meeting of Buckeye Aerie last night. A class of four candidates were initiated at the meeting last night.

ONE TAXING DISTRICT COMPLETES BUDGET

Marion Township Asks for $5,000 To Be Used in Road Repair

Only one taxing district in the county has returned its budget for 1929 according to County Auditor Earl E. Thomas. Blank budget forms were mailed by the auditor to the clerks of the various districts several days ago. They are to be returned by July 20, Mr. Thomas states.

Marion township is the only district to file its budget with the auditor. The budget asks for $5,000, of which $3,475.40 is for tax on state aid roads. The remainder will be used for township roads. There was no request for money for the general fund.

DITCH ASSESSMENTS PAID BY 14 OWNERS

Auditor Says Two Months Remain Before Interest Will Be Added

Assessments totalling $1,066.14 have been paid by 14 property owners along the route of the Ququa ditch, according to County Auditor Earl E. Thomas. The assessments have been paid within the last 10 days.

Mr. Thomas stated this morning that it would still be possible for property owners to save interest on their assessments by making their payments within the next two months. Interest, he said, will not be added to the assessments until after they are placed on the tax duplicate. No date has been set for the end of the extension but it was said today that it would be about two months.

He was later released on his own recognizance for his appearance in court today. The affidavit was filed by his grandfather, who charged that Kingman had broken into his home last November and had taken a gold watch.

TOUGH, AT THAT

Firemen Pass Up Big Feed When Alarm Rings

Being a city fireman has its disadvantages. Shortly before 11:30 this morning just as the crew at the central fire station sat down to a dinner of pot roast of beef, brown gravy and brown potatoes with a desert of peaches, the fire telephone announced their services were required elsewhere. A short circuit in the wiring of a Chevrolet sedan belonging to Mrs. Charles Brady, had set fire to the machine on East Center sat., near Sharpless ct. The blaze was extinguished with small loss.

City Airport Endorsed by Central Labor Union

A municipally owned landing field was indorsed by the Marion Central Labor union at its meeting held last night. In discussing the proposed landing field President Don B. Clark told members of the labor organization that it was the duty of the union to give its support to the movement.

The Central Labor union's airport committee is composed of John J. Zuck, Charles Keeler, and Chester Padman. The committee will continue to operate with other civic organizations in the campaign for a municipal landing field, according to action taken last night.

Members of the labor organization not only favor a municipally owned field, but believe the city should construct the field as well.

Plan Celebration

Plans for a Labor Day celebration here Sept. 3 were discussed at the meeting. Other organizations of the city are expected to send committees to confer with the Central Labor union in making plans for the observance of the day. With the increase in membership in railroad organizations it is believed that a successful celebration can be arranged in observance of Labor Day.

A resolution recently passed by the Brotherhood of Firemen, one of the largest railway labor organizations, which condemns so-called "labor journals" conducted by private individuals, was read at the meeting. According to R. K. Ruppart, secretary of the local organization, many inquiries have been received recently from Marion merchants regarding advertising in these journals. The local labor organization has warned merchants of this city, Ruppart said, against such advertising as the promoters are working solely for their own benefit and are in no way connected with labor organizations.

A letter from President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, naming the period from Aug. 27 to Sept. 8 as a period for an intensive campaign in the interest of the union label and shop cards in the union movement, was read at the meeting.

BUSINESS MAN DIES AT LOCAL HOSPITAL

Charles William Cocherl, 61, To Be Buried Saturday Afternoon

Charles William Cocherl, 61, lifelong resident of this city, died at 1:15 o'clock this morning at City hospital after an illness of about six months. He had recently undergone an abdominal operation.

For the past 20 years Mr. Cocherl had engaged in the sheet-metal business with his sons, Omer and John Cocherl, of this city. He was a member of the Eagles lodge and of the American Insurance Union.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Greenwood Evangelical church with the Rev. Irwin Kauffman, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in Marion cemetery.

Mr. Cocherl was born in this city April 20, 1867, the son of John and Henrietta Berry Cocherl. His aged father, John Cocherl, of Columbus, who is 93 years of age, survives him. Mr. Cocherl was united in marriage here July 29, 1888, to Miss Rachel Fox, who also survives him.

In addition to his wife and father he leaves the two sons, John Cocherl, at home and Omer Cocherl, 501 North Greenwood st., two sisters, Mrs. Dell Hickman, of Columbus, and Mrs. Grace Schreffler of Newark, four brothers, Frank Cocherl, East Farming st., Edward, Cocherl Jefferson st., Mark Cocherl of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Benjamin Cocherl of Columbus, and two grandchildren. Two daughters, Misses Edna and Mabel Cocherl preceded him in death.

TWO SHEEP KILLED

County Pays Out $32 During Week for Claims

Sheep injured and killed by dogs last week cost Marion county only $32, according to the report of Dale Rhoades, filed recently with the board of county commissioners.

Two sheep were killed and one was injured during the week. They were owned by Frank Clay of Bowling Green township.

Fourteen dogs were impounded and destroyed during the week, according to the dog warden's report.

A man doesn't necessarily have to be tough for eight or ten years before settling down, but it seems inevitable that he has to be more or less foolish.

Free of Kidney Trouble: Gladly Indorses Konjola

Says New Medicine Restored His Health; Also Banished Awful Stomach Misery

MR. NICK BATTIFARANO

"I suffered for three years and was never able to find a medicine to relieve me until I got Konjola," said Mr. Nick Battifarano, 144 South Ninth Street, Steubenville, Ohio.

"My kidneys gave me a lot of trouble and I was never able to sleep well because of frequent actions. Sharp pains centered in my back and I was never free of this trouble. My appetite was poor and what I managed to eat caused me more harm than good. A sour, acid condition of the stomach kept me in misery after every meal.

"I decided to try Konjola and within a short time my kidney trouble was completely relieved. Now I enjoy sound sleep at night and have new energy and vigor the next morning. My stomach trouble is ended and I am eating whatever is placed before me without suffering after I get up from the table. Konjola is a splendid medicine and I strongly indorse it."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that had been going on for years. At the same time many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product until now Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is strongly recommended here in Marion at Stump & Sums Pharmacy, and is also being sold by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous

by Ruth Brittain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. With each package, you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine.—Adv.

APPLY COMMON SENSE TO HOUSEKEEPING

Two Minutes a Week Saves Costly Plumber Bills and Torn-up Floors

Slow-running drain pipes are the most aggravating of nuisances—except a torn-up floor and plumber bills. Both are unnecessary. Both can be avoided—thanks to Red Seal Lye.

Two minutes does it, once a week. Just shake a small quantity into hot water and flush out with more hot water. That is all that is necessary if you use Red Seal Lye. For Red Seal Lye is 97% pure lye. The quickest, surest, most economical made. It dissolves vegetable matter, matted hair, grease and rust as fast as water does salt. It leaves drain pipes clean, sanitary, free-flowing.

Keep one of the handy Red Seal cans in the kitchen. This saves useless steps.

And now (while you are thinking about it) put down "a can of Red Seal Lye" on your grocery list. Then make it a habit (like winding the kitchen clock) to follow this simple rule of "2 minutes a week."

Never again will you have a slow-running, annoying drain pipe—or a plumber ripping up your floors to take a pipe apart. One 15c can of Red Seal Lye is a small insurance remium against such unnecessary nuisances.

THE HEART STORY OF A WOMAN'S AFFECTIONS

By ADELE GARRISON

...a Point by Throwing ...a Domestic Situation

... that Ducky would ... me see that I ... him turn over ... personal affairs to ...

... be married at last. ... What are you bring ... thing for?"

... she brought herself ... She telephoned ... game—wants you to ... and I had a chance to ... —and she took great ... me that as of course ... are out here all winter.

there wasn't the slightest use of your remaining here."

"Well" I'll be—" Ducky began, but I gave him no opportunity to finish the exclamation.

"I believe her chief grievance is that you have been playing mursemaid all summer first to Harry, then to Junior. She admonished me to be sure not to break an arm or anything like that. I would have told her that in no case would any injury of mine keep you from your work with her, but unfortunately I had to hurry to Junior's room and could not reassure her upon that point. But I am sure that when you telephone her, you will be able to set her mind at rest."

I stopped talking with outward nonchalance which had a choice assortment of tremors. I expected another explosion from my temperamental husband, and braced myself to meet a storm of objurgation. But I should have known from my years of experience with my volatile Peter Pan that he often does the absolutely unexpected thing. His anger and his laughter are both set on such hair triggers that one frequently gives way to the other. What it was in my speech that had pleased and calmed him instead of adding to his irritation I did not know, but he suddenly threw back his head and laughed heartily.

"From women and their vagaries, good Lord, deliver us!" he said. "That ought to be added to the Litany. Oh! don't look so Puritanically shocked. You're probably said it yourself, only substituting the word 'men' for 'women.' But between you and Ede, I know I shall be led to a nicely cushioned cell in Bellevue before I'm much older. At that though, I can understand that you wouldn't care much for Ede's advice upon the subject of your plans for next year, I'll admit, but she means all right. I'll drop her a hint to curb her zeal for attending to our family affairs."

From underneath my eyelashes I sent a keen glance at his face and discovered a distinct if faint smirk upon it. In his voice also there was a suspicion of smug pleasure, and I puzzled no longer over the reason for his unexpected mirthful reaction to the speech which in self defense I purposely had made as irritating as I could.

He had jumped to the conclusion that Edith's telephone conversation had aroused my jealousy—I refused to admit even to myself how accurate was his premise—and—as always—the idea of my being jealous of him had put him in such good humor that he had no room in his soul for anger.

But I read something else also in his face, and that was the tacit acknowledgment of my victory in the contest of my keeping up with my work. He might have persisted in his own determination that I should give it up and stay at the farmhouse during the winter but Edith's eager suggestion to that effect had made it impossible for him to press the question. He knew that I could read but one conclusion from their joint advice—that they did not want me on the city for reasons of their own, and though in my soul I extenuated him of anything but a genuine desire for Junior's pleasure, yet I resolved to hold fast to the victory I had won.

Jubilee's Pardner

...

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Thursday, and it rained. It wasn't raining when me and Jubilee woke up, and it wasn't raining when I finished feeding my face and snuck some eats out to Jubilee, but when we got half way to the pasture it seemed like someone had jerked the sky out from under the rain and it was all coming down at once. We just had time to run down the bank and duck into the culvert.

The culvert is high enough to drive a horse through so that we could stand up in it, and we could hear the thunder and could see the lightening at the ends of the culvert, and it was like being in a cave, and we inside out like we were robbers and the thunder was the guns of the enemy. Nibs believed, "Feller me, my brave men!" and he went splashing up through the culvert in water almost to his knees and when he went past where the girls were something tripped him and he fell flat on his stummick in the muddy water. He got up and said to Feeble, "You think you are smart, don't you?" and Feeble said, "Why me?" Then Nibs told Feeble that she had tripped him up, and she laughed at him and looked crosseyed. He told her if a gentleman could hit a lady he would paint her one, and she told him he wasn't no gentleman, and he said that was all right. And she asted him if a gentleman couldn't hit a lady no matter what she done to him and he said of course he couldn't, and when he said that she fetched him a wallop on the ear and he foot slipped and down he went again. Then we noticed that the water was deeper than it had been before and was getting deeper all the time, and then we looked out of the culvert and the sun was shining, so we run out and got in behind our cows.

Nibs said that a gentleman can't paint a lady, whatever he done to her, so if the girls don't stop coming with us he is going to quit, and almost the whole bunch said, "That's the stuff." So Nibs turned around to me and told me that the bunch wanted the girls to quit running with us, and I said he was wrong because they said, "That's the stuff" when he said he was going to quit. So he didn't dast ast which they meant, and we went on to the pasture and the girls stayed with us.

We was all setting under the tree and the girls were looking for berries when Feeble screamed and went past us with a big snake after her. I never did see a girl or a snake go so fast, and by the time we got after her she was out in the road and most home. She had killed the snake in the berry patch and was pulling it with a string when she went past us. She is the Lost Rag of Trips of her sex.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Physician's Discovery Reduces It Quickly and Dizzy Spells Disappear

Thousands who have dizzy spells, sleeplessness, nervousness, shortness of breath, pains in the head and impaired energy have been told by physicians or insurance examiners that they have high blood pressure. The serious results are well enough known to check it at once. High blood pressure caused by overtaxing the heart often brings on Bright's Disease, apoplexy and sudden death.

Norma reduces high blood pressure. Often one bottle will do it. Many have so testified. It is a doctor's prescription and is much used by women at the changing time of life who usually have blood pressure above normal. Ask for Norma.—Adv.
